We place native English speakers with a Bachelor's degree in paid, full-time positions teaching Conversational English in Central Europe (Hungary, Lithuania, Poland, Romania, and Slovakia.). What is required is flexibility, patience, maturity, sensitivity to cultural differences, and a love of teaching and language. CETP is a non-profit, and does not charge fees to host schools or host country governments; therefore, CETP teachers pay their own airfare to Europe, and pay a placement fee to cover in-country support and program operating costs. If you want to make a difference in a part of the world that desperately needs native-fluent English teachers, and help level the playing field in Europe's less affluent countries, please consider joining CETP.	All majors are welcome to apply. Applicants must have native fluency in English, and must receive their Bachelor's degree on or before June '01 to teach in the '01/'02 school year. Most applicants are majors in English, Education, History, Anthropology, International Studies, and foreign languages, but anyone with a desire to teach conversational English is welcome to apply. Prior teaching or tutoring experience helpful.
