MOVIE REVIEW

'In the Mood for Love'

★★★★☆

By Bevin Caffery
Oregon Daily Emerald

Movies with the typical love story plot are a dime a dozen: A man and a woman meet and feel the pulling attraction toward each other, but are bound by society's rules to stifle their feelings for fear of being ostracized.

So is "In the Mood for Love" just like any other romance flick? The special characteristic about this foreign film is its intense emotion, the impressive scenes in its exotic setting in Hong Kong and its divergence from stereotypical American romance films.

It is a meaningful coincidence that Chow Mo-wan and Mrs. Chan, nee Su Li-zhen, move into their new rooms on the exact same day, and neither one has the benefit of their spouse's help. Another coincidence in Kar-Wai Wong's "In the Mood for Love" is that both their significant others work very late hours, giving
