

The Ambassador Program wants you!

Seeking students who are interested in Student Orientation Programs at the U of O. Ambassador duties are:

- ♦ Giving campus tours
- ♦ Calling prospective students
- ♦ Becoming familiar with the recruitment process
- ♦ Assist at various recruitment events

Ambassador - Multicultural Recruiter

This year we are excited to hire 5 new Ambassadors who will focus on multicultural recruitment. These students should have an in-depth knowledge of multicultural recruitment issues and a broad base of involvement with campus services and resources related to cultural diversity. While maintaining the same workload as the general Ambassadors, these students will specifically focus their recruitment efforts for students of color.

Despite a slow start because of technical difficulties, the event was deemed a success by those involved.

The first segment of the fashion show, which was mostly sponsored by Syntax clothing, featured traditional Asian wear from Korea, the Philippines, China, Japan, Africa, India and Nepal.

"These particular fashions were unique to American dress, because each item represented historical orientation that many of the audi-stuff with silk dresses and ball gowns, while the men flashed standard black, red and suede suits.

The casual segment included models dressed in spring and summer clothing and urban wear. Styles for women ranged from floral design dresses and skirts to orange T-shirts and flared jeans. The men dressed in basic shirts and khakis.

The show also included active wear, such as athletic gear and apparel to wear to clubs.

Model Masahiro Yokoy said he was glad to be part of an event dedicated to the Asian community.

"I thought it was great," he said. "I met a lot of people."

Yokoy, a junior business major, said his favorite outfit was the traditional Asian wear.

"My kimono was pretty tight," he said.

Audience member Sheloman Byrd said Syntax had some "happening threads" and it was "cool" to see so many different people come together at the event.

Sophomore pre-journalism major Pauline Kim said she likes the fashion show because it's a great way for students to become familiar with campus diversity and learn more about Asian culture.

"It's for everyone," she said. "It's great entertainment."

"We plan to mow the grass there and maintain the lots," he said.

Eyster said the houses are being relocated because "it didn't make sense financially for the University to continue to operate them. They were in very bad physical shape."

Laura Marriott, president of the Fairmount Neighbors, said that University Housing's actions were "not really shocking at all." Marriott said that Vishanoff acts on his own and does not represent the neighborhood.

Following the meeting, Grant was arrested. He said that he, Vishanoff and a few other area residents walked to his house at 1914 E. 17th St. to plant protest signs in the yard and continue discussion of the issue. Grant said he became angry with a campus security officer who was patrolling the area and yelled obscenities as the officer drove past. The campus security officer then called in an EPD officer, who arrested him for disorderly conduct.
