Are you interested in the environment and civil rights? Do you consider yourself an activist? Are you socially and politically cognizant of race and the environment or are you looking for the opportunity to become more aware? If you are, the environmental justice movement needs you. The Coalition Against Environmental Racism (CAER) is looking for two motivated, well organized, student leaders to be the 2002 Environmental Justice Conference organizers and CAER co-directors. If you are interested, you can pick up a general ASUO employment application form today at the multicultural center or outside the ASUO executive office. Submit your application to the CAER mailbox inside the ASUO executive office. Please contact Glen Banfield or Kristen Stiegler at 346-4168 for more information. Positions are open until filled. CAER is an equal employment opportunity employer.

Environmental Justice tries to unite environmentalism and social justice into one movement. The Environmental Justice movement stems from a growing body of evidence, which reveals that people of color are subjected to a disproportionately large number of health and environmental risks in their neighborhoods and their jobs.
