

News brief

Pi Kappa Phi finds new home

The initials are the same, but the name of the fraternity occupying a house near 11th Avenue and Alder Street has changed.

This month, members of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity moved into the house, which was once home to Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Phi Kappa Psi closed in spring of 2000 after members voted to shut down the chapter, University Greek Life coordinator Shelley Sutherland said. She said she did not know why they voted to close it.

Since the fraternity closed, no student group has lived in the house until this fall, she added.

Pi Kappa Phi has had a chapter on campus for several years, she said. Last year, some members of the fraternity lived in a much smaller house off-campus, but the fraternity did not have an official chapter house.
