Namee, who is seventh in the Pac-10 in assists per game (11.26). She is also third all-time on the Cal career list with 2,968 assists.

Ferreira has stressed team play all season, and if the Ducks can do that tonight against the Golden Bears, Oregon may pull off its first Pac-10 win of the season.

"If we play (tonight) with the mentality we played with (last night), and cut down some of our serve and passing mistakes, we'll do fine," Martin said.

Cal swept the Ducks last season, although the first match proved to be one for the ages. Oregon played the Bears strong in that match, losing in five games (15-13, 11-15, 14-16, 15-13, 26-24) at McArthur Court.

Tonight's match at Haas Pavilion is set to start at 7 p.m.

Tobbagi visits the Bay Area for the last time

Tonight marks the last match senior Monique Tobbagi will play in the Bay Area as a collegiate player. The San Jose, Calif., native said she grew up watching Stanford as a child, and has looked forward to visiting the Cardinal and Golden Bears for the last time.

"It's exciting going home, getting to play in front of family and friends," she said. "That always gets your adrenaline going."

While a standout at Archbishop Mitty High School, Tobbagi led the Monarchs to the NorCal Championship and a berth in the state finals as a senior.

Her collegiate career would be no different, combining for 19 kills and 11 digs at Stanford and Cal last season, but she has never beaten the Cardinal. In 1998, her first season at Oregon, she helped lead the Ducks to their 12th overall win against Cal, but has not beaten them since.

When asked if she is going to miss playing as a Duck in the Bay Area, a stoic Tobbagi said there could be no other way.

"It's a sad thing, but at the same time it's been a great career and I've had a fun time doing it."
