"We just didn't finish our chances," Baysa said. "That's about it."

Fernandes turned out to be a key player in the match as she disrupted more Oregon plays later in the contest. In the second half, Baysa and freshman striker Nicole Garbin both got into scuffles with Fernandes, and both times the Ducks were denied legitimate chances to score.

Thirteen minutes into the second period, Baysa had the ball all alone on the left side of the Trojan goal. Fernandes came out to challenge Baysa, but when Baysa got past her, Fernandes seemed to grab the Oregon forward's legs. Fernandes was issued a yellow card on the play. Nineteen minutes later, Garbin had a similar breakaway, and Fernandes made a diving stop on the ball at Garbin's feet. The ball squirted free, but Garbin was still tangled with Fernandes, who was injured on the play.

"She wasn't going for the ball, that was obvious," Baysa said about her encounter with the USC goalie. "But unfortunately, the refs haven't been on our side all season."

The Ducks were in a similarly hard-fought contest with UCLA on Friday, but the top-ranked Bruins never let the Ducks get close. UCLA scored twice in the first 15 minutes, then cruised the rest of the match, despite several scoring opportunities for Oregon. Sarah-Gayle Swanson and Breana Boling scored the two goals for the Bruins.

The Ducks played well in the second half, outshooting the Bruins 14-10.

Oregon will next travel to Corvallis on Sunday to take on Oregon State.
