Keenan Howry (15) and Joey Harrington (3), among other Oregon players, swarm Marshaun Tucker after he caught the game-winning touchdown pass against Arizona State two seasons ago. Harrington threw the 29-yard strike to Tucker.

■ Oregon and Arizona State have a knack for excitement when they clash on the field

By Peter Hockaday
Oregon Daily Emerald

When Oregon and Arizona State meet on a playing field or court, the Devils often make the Ducks' life hell. But always, Oregon is able to duck out of trouble.

Oregon football head coach Mike Bellotti calls them "great fan appeal games."

It started two years ago on the football field.

After a less-than-exciting first half at Autzen Stadium, Oregon and Arizona State went to halftime tied 3-3. The Ducks' starting quarterback, then-junior A.J. Feeley, was yanked for then-sophomore Joey Harrington, who played the entire second half. The Sun Devils' quarterback, Ryan Kealy, went 4-for-16 in the first half and probably should have been yanked.

Harrington threw a touchdown pass and Josh Frankel kicked a field goal in the third quarter, and the teams entered the fourth quarter with Oregon leading, 13-10. The Sun Devils struck next, after a drive that lasted almost four minutes, on a one-yard touchdown run with 1:04 on the clock.

What came next was Joey Harrington's first home comeback, one that would help fuel his "Captain Comeback" nickname later. Harrington
