second in the final BCS rankings released Dec. 9 and play in the Rose Bowl, but they'd need a few more upsets.

"I tend to stay away from it all," Tetterton said. "That's Justin (Peelle) and Joey (Harrington's) department to calculate everything. Joey's always got the scenarios: 'If these people do this and if these guys take a car ride from point A to point B, then they can go to the Rose Bowl.'"

"I just listen to everything they say and go, 'Oh, that's nice.'"

Harrington earns Offensive Player of the Year

The Pac-10 handed out its season awards Monday, and quarterback Joey Harrington was honored as the league's Offensive Player of the Year. The senior has compiled a 23-3 record as a starter and has passed for 2,310 yards this season on 175-of-300 passing. His 23-touchdowns-to-five-interceptions ratio is tops in the Pac-10.

"(Joey's) certainly deserving, because he's been the catalyst for us to get to where we're at," Bellotti said. "He'd be the first to tell you that when that happens, that becomes a team award."

Joining Harrington on the Pac-10 First Team Offense is Peelle and receiver Keenan Howry, who was also named on the First Team Specialists for his punt returns.

Defensive back Rashad Bauman and linebacker Wesly Mallard made the Pac-10's Second Team Defense, while Oregon's tailback tandem of Maurice Morris and Onterio Smith both made the Second Team Offense.

Smith and Mallard also were listed among the Second Team Specialists.

since last year, especially defensively," Oregon guard Luke Ridnour said. "This is a whole different team this year."

On offense, the Minutemen get their scoring from two main sources, while the Ducks have spread the ball around. Massachusetts guard Shannon Crooks averages 15 points per game, while 6-foot-11 forward Micah Brand averages 16.5 points per game.

Oregon, conversely, has five players averaging double figures, and seven players are averaging more than nine points per game.

Guard Freddie Jones leads the Ducks with 14 points per game.

One reason for Oregon's offensive surge has been the play of guards Jones, Ridnour and Luke Jackson. The players have used a full-court, run-and-gun mentality that has produced spectacular baskets and loads of points.

"We feel like we're in as good shape as anyone in the country," Jones said. "We can keep running the whole game. That's something we pride ourselves on."

The Ducks think that their offensive output and defensive intensity could lead them to their second NCAA Tournament in three years.

"Everybody on our team thinks we're an NCAA team," Jones said. "And we're not just going for the first round of the NCAAs. We're looking to make some noise nationally."

Oregon's road to the 2002 NCAA Tournament will have to go through Massachusetts. The Ducks will take on the Minutemen in Springfield, not UMass' normal home of Amherst.

Tonight's game will be broadcast in Oregon on the Oregon Sports Network. It is the third broadcast game for the Ducks this season. Tipoff is scheduled for 4 p.m. today.
