With 3:57 left, Shantay Legans dribbled it off his leg after tight defense from Ridnour.

With 2:50 to play, Oregon forced Cal into a 35-second violation.

And with 44 seconds left, Cal trailing 70-67, Legans was forced into the corner and threw a desperate pass to mid-court. The ball was tipped by Oregon's Robert Johnson to Jones, who drove to the hoop, got fouled and knocked down both free throws to up the lead to five.

For good measure, Legans was also pick-pocketed by Ridnour after Jones' free throws, sending the ball into James Davis's hands who then made both of his free throws to seal the deal.

Finally, the Ducks expressed, they were able to win a game in the final minutes, with all four of their losses this season being decided in the crucial closing moments.

"That's a game we probably would have lost last year," Ridnour said. "We're starting to grow up a little."

And with no class on Saturday, the Ducks will be able to sleep in a little before tangling with Stanford in a huge 3 p.m. tilt at Mac Court.
