Department of History

presents

September 11th Crisis in Historical Perspective
With Daniel Pope, Arif Dirlik, and Matthew Dennis
Wednesday, February 20 4:00-5:30
100 Willamette Hall

In an effort to facilitate education and informed discussion—from a variety of perspectives—on the events of September 11th and their aftermath, the University of Oregon Senate Ad-Hoc Committee charged with coordinating the university's response is sponsoring a series of panel presentations and discussions during Winter term 2002.

Symposia will meet weekly, on Wednesdays from 4:00 to 5:30 P.M., in 100 Willamette Hall. Each week will feature presentations and discussions that draw on the particular perspectives, specializations and expertise of University of Oregon schools, departments and programs, as well as individual faculty engaged in teaching and research on topics that inform our understanding of the September 11th crisis and subsequent developments.

The University Senate Ad-Hoc Committee does not take positions on issues of policy, politics, or ideology. To ensure its neutrality, the Committee will provide clear identification of the specific sponsorship of campus activities by the groups that carry them out. In all cases, the content of remarks and materials relating to these issues are the responsibility of their sponsors, and do not reflect an official position of the Ad-Hoc Committee or the University of Oregon.

All meetings are free of charge and open to the public.

USC playing it cool for No. 10 Stanford

By Todd Harmonson
The Orange County Register

LOS ANGELES (KRT) — Their team will play for first place in the Pacific-10 Conference with only four regular-season games left. They will face one of the top big men in the country, who was injured the last time USC played Stanford, without the help of their starting center. And they are only freshmen.

Apparently none of the above is a big deal to USC's Rory O'Neil and Nick Curtis, who said they won't let their poise succumb to the pressure they are under.

"I'll just go out there and play basketball and it'll be fine," O'Neil said. Said Curtis: "I'm not going to put too much pressure on myself."

If O'Neil and Curtis can play as cool a game Thursday as they talked Tuesday, No. 20 USC might be OK against No. 10 Stanford at Maples Pavilion.

However, if they get rattled and play like, well, freshmen, the Trojans could be in trouble.

USC learned Tuesday that it definitely would be without center Kostas Charissis, who has a non-displaced fracture in his left ankle and is expected to miss at least 3-4 weeks. The Trojans also will have to deal with Stanford's 7-foot center Curtis Borchardt, who missed USC's 90-82 victory over the Cardinal on Jan. 26 because of a hip pointer.

O'Neil is expected to get the bulk of the minutes in place of Charissis, and he had a breakout performance against Stanford in the first meeting. The 6-foot-11 center was 7-for-8 from the field and had two blocked shots in 24 minutes before he fouled out.

USC coach Henry Bibby said he

"I'll just go out there and play basketball and it'll be fine."

Rory O'Neil

does not plan to start O'Neil because he likes to have his scoring ability coming off the bench. It also should help O'Neil stay out of early foul trouble.

Curtis (6-foot-8) appears to be the likely starter in place of Charissis, unless Bibby changes up and goes with a smaller lineup. Curtis started three non-conference games but has averaged only 5.6 minutes and 1.2 points this season.

Portland State. Quinn Collett wrestles at 174 pounds and has a winning streak of five matches for a 22-8 record. At 197, Randy Davidson (21-11) has compiled 49 team points, which is third on the team behind Collett's 65 and Wilson's 68.

For Oregon, senior Eugene Harris,

No. 5, leads the squad with 88 team points and a 26-3 record.

In last season's match-up between Oregon and Portland State, the Ducks lost only one match, cruising to a 43-3 victory. Oregon has won the last 19 meetings between the two schools.
