them in history books," she said. Among the list of honorees was Assistant Dean of Diversity Programs Mark Tracy.

"Mark has become a friend, a mentor and the older brother I never had," BSU Co-Director Haben Woldu said of Tracy's dedication to the University and her own education.

Midway through the ceremony, the African Student Association entertained the audience with two cappella songs.

In addition to award recipients on behalf of the University, individuals from Lane Community College Black Student Union and the Black Women of Achievement were also given honors.

Many honorees were praised for their dynamic roles in campus fraternities and sororities, their churches and their communities.

Upon receiving their awards, however, they passed the credit to the people who helped them.

"I wouldn't be here without God and support from the African American community, family and friends," said Edniesha Curry, award winner and recent Charlotte Sting. Although Curry's athletic abilities earn her recognition from across the map, she was honored by the strong support from her ethnic community right here in Eugene.

"Getting awards from African American peers means a lot to me," she said.

CHAMBER MUSIC FROM TEREZIN

From 1941-44, prisoners of the Nazi concentration camp in Terezin, Czechoslovakia, created magnificent works of art while living in circumstances best described as inhuman. In celebration of Expressions of Human Dignity Month, Third Angle New Music Ensemble will honor these great artists by performing some of the chamber music composed in Terezin.
