out getting some cash in return can contact Eugene Liquidators at 689-3973.

"We take mostly items that are made of wood, but it all depends on what we need at the time," spokeswoman Esther Borchers said.

Another option for new graduates is to hold a garage sale. The City of Eugene allows two garage/yard sales per year without having to apply for a permit. Those who do need a permit can call the Land Use Applications office at 682-5377.

While disposing of possessions can be a hassle, Martell and Blakely pointed out that there is a positive side.

"College furniture is good for one thing: college," Martell said. "I can't wait to start from scratch and have furniture that isn't broken."

Blakely agreed.

"It will be nice to have stuff that isn't all mismatched and crappy," he said. "It will be nice to have plates and silverware that aren't from different random places."
