Campus

I have to tell them to be quiet because I have an early morning class," Sweeney said.

University Housing also offers apartments or homes for families and graduate students. Full-time students 21 or older are eligible to live in any of the five complexes, including Spencer View, Westmoreland, Agate and Moon Court apartments, and Vintage Homes east of campus, with the East Campus Graduate Village to be ready in September. Graduate housing comes fully furnished with parking and Internet access, as well as child care and community events.

Cooperative living

Cooperative student housing offers a unique living opportunity where residents share the house duties of cooking and cleaning.

"It's a dynamic environment," said Geoff Hoffa, who lived in The Lorax co-op for six terms. "You come across an array of ideas and meet a lot of new people."

The three student co-ops, The Lorax, Campbell Club and Janet Smith, attract a diverse range of students. Living eligibility requires taking three class credits per term, with residents' ages ranging from 17-30.

"If you are looking for an alternative to the frats, dorms or a house, co-ops are a good transitional place to live," Hoffa said.

Greek housing

There are 15 fraternity and nine sorority houses that provide a distinctive social atmosphere with similar amenities to the residence halls. Greek houses, located close to campus, offer an Internet connection, study lounges and a cook.

"It's nice to live in a comfort zone," said Kristen Hall, a junior in Alpha Phi. "There's always something to do, and people to go anywhere with you and be with you all the time."

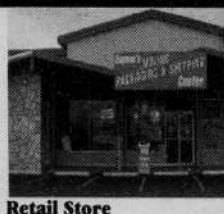

More information on greek housing is available on the Greek Life Web site, www.greek-life.uoregon.edu.
