PCRCs and heavy rain in Pac-10s. But the Ducks were not about to let Mother Nature rain on their parade as the women's open weight four went on to win the gold medal in PCRCs in a time of 8:55.40. The added glory came from defeating both Stanford and UCLA while winning the gold.

Also in PCRCs, the women's varsity light weight boat walked away with the bronze after taking third.

With Oregon being slightly sore the next day for Pac-10s, they did not take away any medals but the men placed seventh in their varsity open weight four race. The Oregon men had another disadvantage as they only raced a novice boat in that category.

Also for Oregon, the women's novice eight and the women's varsity eight placed fourth and second in their heats.

"We definitely met our goals," coordinator Erin Koenig said. "Many boats had to overcome emotional obstacles. Everyone was happy in the end and that is what's important."

The Oregon men and women said they are content with the ending of the season and consider the year a success.

"It was a really amazing year," Koenig said. "The team had to overcome a lot of obstacles, but we were able to pull it together and have a successful season."
