UO tailback named to All-America team

Oregon tailback Onterio Smith, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards in 2001, was selected a preseason first-team All-American by The Sporting News.

Smith's selection is part of the magazine's 2002 College Football Yearbook issue. The Sporting News ranked Oregon No. 20 in the nation — fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference — in its annual preseason poll.

Washington State was ranked sixth in the country, Washington was 12th and USC was 18th.

Smith was one of two Pac-10 players to be included on the magazine's first-team list, joining Oregon State defensive back Dennis Weathersby.

The selection is Smith's second in the last month. He was flown to Phoenix in May to take part in a photo shoot for Playboy magazine's All-America team.

The Oregon junior, a backup for Maurice Morris last year, led the team with 1,058 yards while scoring seven rushing touchdowns in 2001. He also scored once on a reception and returned a kickoff for a touchdown against Washington State.

Ticket sales continue to soar

Football season ticket sales for the 2002 Oregon season continue at an unprecedented pace, leaving the availability of single-game tickets for some Pac-10 games in question, said Dave Heeke, associate athletics director for external operations.

The Ducks have sold 39,100 season tickets for the upcoming year, surpassing the school's previous season-ticket record of 30,365 from a year ago.

Reserved seats on a season ticket basis are still available for the cost of $253 by calling the University ticket office at 346-4461 or 1-800-WEBFOOT.

deeply football is embedded into countries all over the world. Americans and their capitalist sports market — a market that caters to many but as a whole satisfies only a few — can never know what it's like to grow up with a sport built into the very fabric of a nation.

In England, football criss-crosses the country and the country's demographics. The Queen herself gave condolences to England's star of Korea 2002, David Beckham, in his quick recovery from a recent broken foot. The Queen herself was thinking the same thoughts as the coal-miner from Newcastle.

In Italy 1990, Gascoigne and the English went on to lose to the Germans on penalty-kicks. In Saitama, the English scored first but floundered in the second half, giving up a goal midway through and ending the game in a tie.

But the chants and songs of the English fans never died down for 90 minutes. Just like the rhythm of English football will never die down within me. Give me St. George in my heart, keep me English.

Da-da, da-da da. Da-da, da-da da. Da-da, da-da da-da da-darr. ENGLAND!
