— Spencer Gifts and Sears, who wouldn't want to do a little perusing? And, as luck may have it, the trip to the mall might coincide with a sidewalk sale. Let's cross our fingers and hope!

After such an event-filled day, a hearty meal is in order. Thankfully, the mall's prized restaurant is also its hot spot. Hometown Buffet, anyone? It's almost possible to taste the class in each and every bite.

Finally, finish the night off with the second-half of a double feature, then call it quits.

With the day complete, revel in a day well spent. A day at the Gateway Mall has just as many attractions as a day at the zoo, but beats the hell out of it, in my book.

And while it might not have been pretty, at least there was air conditioning.

While the dancers are allowed to touch the patron — think $20 lap dance — the patron must not initiate contact. 2) Don't clash with the bouncers. Violation of either of these rules will get you thrown out, beaten up — or both.

Another piece of useful advice: Bring $1 bills. Carry lots and lots of them. This is the means of exchange between the dancer and patron. To get a "special show" from a dancer, for example, place a dollar on the table. If the dancer has performed well, leave a dollar. If the dancer is just plain ol' cute, it's worth a dollar.

Also, talking with the dancer in a normal, everyday fashion can gain you favor. Ask them how their shift has been going, what the night has been like or just how life is in general. This small talk creates a kind of tie between the patron and dancer and often times can increase the number of "special shows."

In terms of auditory accompaniment, strip clubs are the last bastions of '80s hair-band music.

There has to be something for the performers to dance to, right? While there is a fair amount of current rock music, watching a dancer appear on stage to Blink-182's "Adam's Song" is just not the same as Warrant's "Cherry Pie."

Those who dwell in the strip clubs on a Friday or Saturday evening can expect to pay a cover charge at the majority of establishments. I can reasonably understand a cover if I was in Los Angeles, Seattle or maybe even Portland — but this is Eugene. The biggest thing going is the football team. Nowhere in Eugene is worth a cover charge. But I digress.

Whether one chooses to go the cheap route — sitting in the corner with one beer for two hours and watching all the action — or to be an active participant — setting down a dollar for every cartwheel performed by a dancer — the strip club offers some hot action in a cool environment. At least, this is what I've been told.
