

Not your parents' church

The Calvary Fellowship, which is located in South Eugene, continues to attract many University students

Brook Reinhard
News Editor

The sound of electric guitars pierces the air. A bass guitar throbs in the background, and a drummer rolls out a steady beat. In the crowded auditorium, people lift their hands toward the ceiling.

The scene could be typical of any rock concert. But it's 10:45 Sunday morning — the "concert" is just 200 people gathered together at Calvary Fellowship for one of two weekly services.

People who go to Calvary don't identify themselves as Baptists, Methodists or Catholics. They say they come to the South Eugene church because the focus is on God.

Calvary Fellowship is one of a handful of nondenominational churches in Eugene that are drawing a crowd of Eugene residents and University students alike.

"I don't give them religion or church," Pastor Danny O'Neil said. "I give them God."

O'Neil, a former University quarterback who helped lead the Ducks to the Rose Bowl in 1995 after a 9-4 record, came back to Eugene two years ago to start the ministry.

The church does not pass an offering plate or have formal church membership. It relies on individual donations in a small box at the back of the room to keep the ministry growing.

"It's not about things or religiousness, it's about growing in the Lord," University student Katie Dersam said.

Dersam, a theater major at the University, is one of the people who helped start the church two years ago at a farm in West Eugene. A year ago, the church outgrew its location and moved to its current building at 40th Avenue and West Amazon Street.

The church has since doubled in size.

O'Neil, who calls himself a "teacher" for his church, said Calvary has split the congregation into two services on Sunday morning to accommodate everyone. He said many of the members come from more traditional backgrounds but stay at Calvary because

Jeramie Brown for the Emerald

Katie Leonard, left, and Lori Thomas sing praise at a Wednesday night service. They say that singing is a way to uplift the congregation while thanking Jesus.

the focus isn't on religion.

"We don't tell them what they have to do for the church," he said. "We tell them what God has done for them."

There are no pews in the church and no hymnals. O'Neil, in a button-down shirt and khakis, is one of the best-dressed people in the room. The lead worship singer wears a baseball cap, T-shirt and jeans. And after the service, footballs can often be seen flying back and forth the auditorium, landing within inches of the expensive sound equipment and coming perilously close to hitting unsuspecting churchgoers.

This casual atmosphere has drawn many students to the church. Holub estimates that University students make up 25 to 50 percent of the congregation.

"We've got everything from punks to hippies to football players to serious, academic students," Holub said.

The activities don't hurt, either. The church planned sky-dives over the summer, a trip to Eagle Cap in Eastern Oregon, a houseboat trip and a rafting trip. And that's not including the three mission trips Calvary members have planned for later this year.

Oregon track star John Stiegeler said that, although the activities are nice, he goes to Calvary because of the close relationships he has with other people and the emphasis on the Bible in O'Neil's preaching.

"We just teach on the word," Stiegeler said. "You can't go wrong if you teach what the word says."

Holub and O'Neil expect to add another service to Calvary Fellowship if growth continues. This past year, the group had 150 members — now there's more than 400. Holub predicts even more people will come in the fall.

"(This) school year, we're just gonna explode," he said.

Contact the news editor at brookreinhard@dailyemerald.com.

Faith

continued from page 8B

to provide a way for these students to delve into their Jewish identity and to promote a resurgence of Jewish life.

Along with special events, Hillel also sponsors several special interest groups like Club Israel, Outdoor Adventures Group and Jewish Women's Collective.

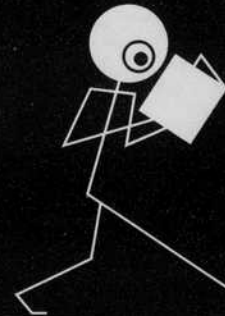

Young Life is an organization that began in 1940 and has an emphasis on ministry geared towards junior high and high school students. It acts a training camp for students who wish to be leaders and guides to younger people.

Contact the news editor at jennischultz@dailyemerald.com.

SAVE $$$$

BUY USED TEXTS

SMITH FAMILY
BOOKSTORE

768 East 13th
345-1651

A UO CAMPUS ALTERNATIVE
SINCE 1974

a proud member of Unique Eugene

CLIMBING • BADMINTON • BASEBALL • BOWLING • CREW • CYCLING • DANCE • EQUESTRIAN

SAILING

• SKIING

• SKIDIVING

• SNOWBOARDING

• SOCCER

• SURFING

• TABLE TENNIS

• TAE KWON DO

• TRIATHLON

• ULTIMATE

• VOLLEYBALL

• WATER POLO

• WUSHU

• JIUJITSU

• TENNIS

40 Team Sports

Instruction & Coaching
Competitive & Noncompetitive

for info 346-3733

or... stop by our office in

EMU Breezeway

Advertise. Get Results.

Oregon Daily Emerald 346-3712

010278

FENCING • ICE HOCKEY • KARATE • LACROSSE • RANGER CHALLENGE • RUGBY • RUNNING • SAILING

AKIDO • ARCHERY • BADMINTON • BASEBALL • BOWLING • CREW • CYCLING • DANCE • EQUESTRIAN • FENCING • ICE HOCKEY • KARATE • LACROSSE • RANGER CHALLENGE • RUGBY • RUNNING • SAILING

75¢ OFF

Foot long Sub

50¢ OFF
any 1/2 sub expires 9/30/02

HONEY HILL FARMS

Come in and get a sub for less at

CAMPUS SUBSHOP

1225 ALDER • 345-2434

MON-FRI 10AM-10PM • SAT 11AM-9PM • SUN 12PM-9PM

50¢ OFF

Any Yogurt*

(*Except small
cones and tinsies.
Expires 9/30/02)

Campus SUBSHOP

Mon.-Fri. 10am-10pm
Sat. 11am-9pm
Sun. 12pm-9pm

1225 Alder
345-2434

Not valid with any other discounts or coupons. One coupon per customer.

HONEY HILL FARMS

009813