that people think they won't be identified, leading them to act more aggressively.

He said combining large groups, nightfall and alcohol consumption lowers inhibitions, and that if two people come up with an idea — such as setting fire to a golf cart — others may follow suit.

According to the Harvard School of Public Health, four drinks for a woman or five drinks for a man, when consumed consecutively, constitute binge drinking. Kali said that this is not much for many students, and that they can easily consume this in one night — likely impairing their judgment.

Malle said rioting happens rarely because many elements must come together. He thinks riots occur near holidays or times of change, such as when school starts, Halloween and near graduation. He said that these are exciting times for students, and that police should increase patrols at these times.

"I would find it wrong for there to be a crackdown on parties altogether," Malle said. "Most of the time students study and get along fine."

Kali said she would like Party Patrol — a team of officers working overtime during weekends to bust parties and write alcohol citations — to be reinstated.

She said the Party Patrol used to request the addresses of the homes for which kegs had been purchased from local bars and contact the people living there to remind them of their rights and obligations. Kali said she thinks this helped prevent parties from getting out of control.

Pilliod said she doesn't think the reinstatement of the Party Patrol is the answer, and that just because some students participated in the riots doesn't mean the student body at large should be punished for the actions of a few.

She also emphasized that the riot was not a student-run event, and is by no means representative of the majority of students at the University.

opposed to the U.S. going to war against Iraq.

"I think this war is purely for economic gain," she said. "And I'm worried about possible human rights violations."

"...I don't know of any other way to solve the problem."

Some students, such as Katie Parker, a junior journalism major, are not in favor of war against Iraq, but are unsure of the alternatives.

"I don't think war is an answer," Parker said. "But I don't know of any other way to solve the problem."

Brendan Purkapile, an undeclared freshman, said he opposes U.S. military action in Iraq because America needs to deal with other international issues. Purkapile said if America intervenes in the Middle East, lending stability to the Palestinian people and countries such as Afghanistan should come first.

"I think we need to show we can help a country instead of just destabilizing them and overturning their system," he said.

authority of power to wage war against Iraq," he said.

"War should be the last resort, not the first resort."

Ed Reiman, Vietnam veteran and Eugene resident, said people should fight for their beliefs, even if they are considered un-American.

"It's not unpatriotic to see the truth, and it's not unpatriotic to shout about it when you see it," he said.

Reiman also had plenty of mud to sling at Republicans, specifically Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., who Reiman accused of trying to quell criticism of Bush and the war.

"Trent, you two-bit, draft-dodging, pretty-boy — you sit down and you shut up," he said.

Several booths were set up around the perimeter of the courtyard as people gave away fliers and buttons and gathered support.

international law as a way to solve international conflict," said Esther Jacobson, a Progressive Responses member who was staffing the booth.

"We don't like the way we are rushing into war," she said.

Some people said they still supported the U.S. military, however.

Bruce Watson, a self-employed Eugene resident, stood at the corner of the courtyard and quietly displayed his sign "Rush is Right."

"Without the U.S. military, there would be no peace movement," he said.

To the participants of the rally, Watson had strong words, displaying another sign that said: "You'll defend tree huggers, alternate lifestyles and suckerfish, but you won't defend the country that protects your rights — shame on you."

Horoscope by Linda C. Black

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 7). What goes around comes around for you this year. The more you keep old promises and pay off old debts, the more prosperous you become. You may even get payback for a good deed you performed years ago. The more good you did, the more good you'll get.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) _ Today is a 6 _ Go back over the books one more time. It's not easy, but you can do this. Add everything up until you know exactly what you have. It's a great feeling.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) _ Today is a 7 _ A very attractive person could be a lot more responsive to your suggestion than you think. You'll never know unless you ask _ soon and often.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) _ Today is a 7 _ Back to work! Your assignment is to test recently acquired theories against cold, hard reality. Humor helps, so don't take yourself too seriously.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) _ Today is a 7 _ Others value your opinions more when you present them with facts. Carefully prepare your case.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) _ Today is a 6 _ Careful deliberation is suggested, especially when it comes to domestic matters. Don't rush into doing something you'll have to live with for years.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) _ Today is a 7 _ Take time to plan ahead. Working smarter instead of harder is the objective. It's possible, but not by just following orders. Use your head.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) _ Today is an 8 _ Make calls and send letters early. Communication channels are apt to get clogged as the day progresses. The money's more likely to come later _ tomorrow or the next day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) _ Today is a 7 _ You're the epitome of sweetness and compassion. Your gentle manner gives others the feeling they can trust you completely, as well they can. Right?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) _ Today is a 7 _ Make sure you know what you're talking about before you make a scene. Be an effective whistle-blower, not a sacrificial lamb.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) _ Today is a 7 _ You're certainly not a phony, but it might be wise to just do the job and not say much about it. Save your comments and share them with friends you won't have to convince.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) _ Today is a 7 _ Are you prepared to report on your recent activities? You've usually done all your homework well in advance. If you haven't, hurry!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) _ Today is a 7 _ Get things organized at your place so that you can expand your area. Curiosity, and maybe an invitation, soon coaxes you beyond old boundaries.
