UO golfers swing for success

The Ducks are hoping the return of a top golfer will help

Golf

After a pair of disappointing finishes, the Oregon women's golf team may have received the spark it needed.

Junior Lacy Erickson, considered one of the Ducks' top golfers, returns in time for the Rainbow Wahine Fall Golf Classic, starting today on the island of Oahu. Erickson, who has been battling mononucleosis, has been cleared to play for the first time since the first round of the Shanico Invitational Sept. 16 in Corvallis. This will be her first tournament action of the fall as part of the Ducks' top five.

Erickson's supporting cast, which looks to bounce back from a pair of last-place finishes, includes senior Annie Davis, sophomores Johnna Nealy and Jess Carlyon and freshman Therese Wenslow.

"Lacy's getting her strength back and being able to add her to the lineup gives us a little more experience," Oregon head coach Shannon Rouillard said. "We need consistent scores from Lacy. Jess is getting the confidence back in her swing and Johnna and Therese have been playing fairly well for us, so I like the group we have going to Hawaii."

After setting Oregon freshman records in the Ducks' first two tournaments, Wenslow looks to rebound from her 24-over par 240 performance at the Stanford Pepsi Intercollegiate, Oct. 18 through 20. Nealy, who finished in 39th place, carded the Ducks' best score with a 15-over 231.

The 17-team field includes four teams ranked in the top 25 in the latest Golfweek/Sagarin poll, including No. 7 New Mexico, the tournament's defending champion. Other ranked teams include No. 11 California, No. 21 UCLA and No. 25 New Mexico State. The rest of the field includes Brigham Young, California-Irvine, host Hawaii, Kansas, Long Beach State, Northern Arizona, San Diego State, San Francisco, Southern Illinois, Stanford, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, along with Oregon.

"There are a lot of teams in this tournament that we need to beat," Rouillard said. "Three of our five golfers have seen this course before, so I think with that, positive things are possible at this event."

The tournament will be held at the 5,900 yard, par 72 Kapolei Golf Course and will last through Wednesday. This is the Ducks' third appearance in the Hawaii tournament; they finished sixth in 2000 and 17th in 2001.

ASUO vote

 for 2003-04.

In the event of catastrophic damage to an ASUO- or EMU-owned building, reserve funds are used to repair damage and are replenished afterward using incidental fees. This measure would exclude replenishment from the 7 percent budget-increase limitation. Ballot Measure 12.2 allows the ASUO election to be held between February 1 and April 30 of each year.

ASUO President Rachel Pilliod said the measure is necessary because without the referendum process — which has prolonged student elections in the past — a short deadline is not needed.

Two measures that were slated for a vote — 14.4 and 14.6 — will Ballot Measure 2: Approval would give the Athletic Department Finance Committee a one-time exemption to the 7 percent budget increase limitation to include two pre-school football games. The increase would be limited to 9.5 percent.

Ballot Measure 3: Approval would exclude funding of ASUO and EMU building and equipment reserves from the 7 percent calculation for the 2003-2004 budget, as well as when replenishing the funds after "catastrophic damage to any ASUO- or EMU-owned building."

Ballot Measure 4: Approval would change the ASUO general election date to "no earlier than Feb. 1 and no later than Apr. 30 of each year."

not appear on the ballot.

ASUO Public Relations Director Lacy Ogan said the ASUO had to resubmit the measures late in the week, which didn't give enough time for the ASUO Constitution Court to rule before Hall needed to finalize the election.

Ballot Measures 14.4 and 14.6 would have updated the ASUO Constitution to eliminate references to the referendum process.

Another measure related to law enforcement is Measure 20-60, which would issue as much as $10.35 million in county bonds to pay for a new microwave radio communications system.

Clements added the potential for a new system should interest students.

"If you have students traveling from here to the coast, or up to the ski areas, there's places right now where there's no communication — and that's jeopardizing public safety," he said. "This (current system is) 60s technology that was installed in the 70s."

Another county issue is Measure 20-61, which would use up to $6.375 million to improve disability access at the Lane County Courthouse. The money would help renovate the Wayne Morse free speech area of the building and provide a public service counter for people with questions about the sheriff's office.

Measure 20-62 would improve county parks by spending up to $20.7 million in taxpayer bonds. The money would be used to build new parks and improve existing ones, including Armitage and Hendricks parks.

Measure 20-63 would construct a Lane County Public Health Building using $30 million in bonds. The building, which would replace parts of the County Annex constructed 50 years ago, would provide for better public health services, including services such as pregnancy prevention, alcohol and drug offender treatment, and better policing of Lane County restaurants for health inspections.

Finally, Measure 20-65 would spend $10 million in taxpayer bonds to build a new planetarium, which would provide astronomy education to students of all ages and the community at large. The project would replace the existing planetarium located next to Autzen Stadium with a new, state-of-the-art facility at the Lane County Fairgrounds.
