Student Senate approves three special requests

The ASUO Student Senate met a day early this week for its meeting, granting three special requests, hearing committee updates and making short announcements.

The senate tabled the approval of meeting minutes for the last two meetings so errors could be corrected.

Programs Finance Committee members announced that program budgets of more than $7,000 are due this Friday.

The Student Bar Association requested $500 from the surplus to help fund an event being coordinated with the Native American Law Students Association. The event — which will be held at the law school — will host the Navajo Supreme Court to hear a case.

Although the SBA members already raised $4,394 for the event on their own, they acquired a deficit of $569 after learning they would also have to pay airfare for attorneys who will argue the case.

SBA members said the event will promote diversity in education and show that the law school is "serious about different types of law."

A motion was made to transfer the entire deficit of $569, but it was amended later when Sen. Levi Strom said the senate should be consistent in granting only what the group requested, which was $500.

Senators agreed, and the amended motion was approved 14 to 1.

The International Student Association members requested $30 be released from their food holding account to fund their coffee hour. ISA members requested twice as much this week because they did not hold one last week as it was the Thanksgiving holiday. Senators said they would investigate whether they could automatically transfer the money every week, as the ISA holds the same event weekly.

Senators approved the motion 14 to 1.

The Women's Center requested $676 be transferred from surplus to their leadership account to fix an accounting problem. The center's money budgeted to pay student coordinators was rolled over into surplus because of late paperwork, and they needed a transfer to correct the mistake.

Senators approved the motion 14 to 1.

are paid $8.50 per hour and load and unload packages weighing anywhere from 25 to 70 pounds on to trucks.

Driver assistants aid the drivers in delivering packages and are paid $7 per hour, and they may work up to 10 hours per day.

Students may also want to stop by the Career Center and check out the job postings.

"Some of our regular employers, especially retailers, hire a few more students during the winter break or add more hours to their regular schedules," Ferris said.
