These are the final picks of the season for our pickers — the sports staff, the editor-in-chief and a designer. No spreads for the bowls yet, so we're picking the winners of all the bowls straight-up. Pac-10 teams are in white, while the evil non-Pac-10 squads are in black.

Bowl tickets will cost students a bundle

Tickets are available to students starting today but will not be offered at a discount rate

Tickets for the Seattle Bowl between Oregon and Wake Forest will not be offered at a discount for students, according to Oregon officials.

"It's typically not the case because of our quota obligations," Oregon Athletic Director Bill Moos said about student discounts for tickets.

Tickets for the game cost $53 each through the Oregon ticket office. Those tickets also have a $10 shipping fee assessed to each order. Students can still purchase tickets, through Ticketmaster, for other seats around the stadium. Those ticket prices start at $18.

"We are really excited, because this allows a great many of our fans to come and support us, and I think we have a following in the Pacific Northwest," Oregon head coach Mike Bellotti said.

Tickets will go on sale at 9 a.m. today at the south ticket building behind Autzen Stadium as well as by phone, according to Oregon Senior Associate Athletic Director Dave Heeke.

"I would guess that we could have anywhere from 15,000 to 20,000 fans and maybe even more," Moos said.

Parking is provided for ticket purchasers in the east parking lot at Autzen Stadium. No tickets will be sold from the Casanova Center Ticket Office today because basketball tickets are being sold at that location.

Starting Tuesday, though, Seattle Bowl tickets will be offered at the Casanova Center if they're still available. Telephone orders will be accepted with a Visa or Mastercard by calling (541) 346-3361 or (800) WEB-FOOT.

Seahawks Stadium has a total of 67,000 seats, and the ones being made available to Oregon fans are located in the 300-level sections along the sidelines of the stadium. Moos said that he is trying to negotiate with Seattle Bowl officials for the location of the tickets.

"Our obligation is 12,500 tickets, and it looks like we are going to be able to have very good seat locations for our fans," Moos said.

The $18 seats are located in the endzone at Seahawks Stadium, and don't have as good visibility as the other student seats.

Other tickets will become available to the general public in all other locations throughout the stadium today, as well. Those prices range from $42 along the endzone to $94 at the 50-yard line.

Individual tickets can be purchased by calling (206) 628-0888, or at the Seahawks Stadium Northwest Ticket Office.
