the Ducks. "They always have four guys on the floor that can make plays. They just took it to us."

The news wasn't all good for Oregon, though it could've been much worse. Jackson went for a steal late in the first half but came up with a deep cut on the index finger of his right hand and needed stitches to sew it up. Oregon's second-leading scorer at 17.1 points per game, Jackson will miss Saturday's game against Washington State.

Jackson's absence, however, was hardly felt. Andre Joseph ate up much of Jackson's minutes and scored a career-high 17 points while matching up with Wrenn. Ridnour added 15 points and 11 assists. James Davis had 18 points, connecting on 6-of-7 3-point attempts.

"This is a big rivalry game," Ridnour said. "We knew they were going to come at us — they always play well down here. We were really excited for this game."

Wrenn, who was released from Connecticut after one year, was double-teamed by the Ducks throughout the game and had another opponent hounding him all night. The Pit Crew chanted "UConn reject" at every opportunity, and even teased Nate Robinson, Washington's 5-foot-8 freshman guard who doubles as a starting cornerback for the UW football team. Robinson had a team-high 18 points.

The Huskies didn't score their first basket until the 12:57 mark of the first half, and by then, the game was already out of reach. After 20 minutes, Washington managed just eight field goals in 24 attempts (.333) as the Ducks took a 48-25 lead into the locker room, their largest halftime lead of the season.

After a 9-0 run midway through the second half, the Ducks led 84-45, their largest lead of the game. Every Oregon player except freshman Tyler York, who played only one minute, scored as the Ducks shot 53.1 percent from the field.

Kent compared Thursday's game to Oregon's Dec. 7 win over Kansas.

"The focus was there, the intensity was there, and the shot were falling (against Washington)," he said. "It was something to see."

Despite a decent offensive showing overall, a concern for the Ducks is their outside shooting. Oregon managed to connect on just three 3-pointers in 14 attempts, two by Ganes. The final trey came from sophomore Amy Taylor with 4:53, which pulled the Ducks within 17.

And at that point, it was just too late.

Sophomore Kedzie Gunderson pitched in with nine points, while sophomore Andrea Bills had eight but was just 2-of-7 from the free-throw line.

The loss drops Oregon to 2-6 without Cathrine Kraayeveld, who was found to have a staph infection in her right knee before the Ducks' first Pac-10 game, a loss to UCLA. Oregon must now pull itself out of a hole. The Ducks visit Washington State on Saturday at 7 p.m.

The Cougars have traditionally been the doormat of the Pac-10, having failed to post a winning season in conference play since the 1990-91 campaign.

But while the Cougars are winless this season — nearly pulling off an upset of Oregon State on Thursday night only to be rebuffed, 65-62 — they have played opponents tougher than usual.

"Washington State is a team that is playing very hard," Smith said. "They are very close to a win. They can taste it."
