News brief

Bloodmobile comes to EMU

The Lane Memorial Blood Bank will hold a blood drive from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the EMU. Registration is being held in Taylor Lounge, and the blood is drawn inside the Bloodmobile, parked outside the EMU on University Street. LMBB is looking for A positive and O positive blood in particular, but is accepting others as well. "We never say 'no' to any blood type," LMBB spokeswoman Chris Stockdale said. To be eligible, donors must weigh at least 110 pounds and be 16 years of age or older. Participants need to eat a meal within two hours of having blood drawn and should be in good health. There are also other restrictions; for instance, donors cannot be homosexual males, intravenous drug users or have traveled to certain countries. Everyone will be asked about their health history, and first-time donors need to bring a picture ID card. The LMBB is a not-for-profit organization and collects 30 percent of its blood units with the Bloodmobile. —Roman Gokhman

The Oregon server (center) is being retired to make way for a more technologically advanced system.

 2004, any e-mail being sent to Oregon automatically will be redirected to Darkwing. "In most cases, users will already have a Darkwing or Gladstone account since those are the primary systems we've been generating accounts on for new users," St Sauver said. Computing Center documents librarian Vickie Nelson said that she's not worried about the changes. "I think it will work smoothly," she said. "I think there is enough lead time to get the changes made."

In related news, Darkwing users now have the option to condense their e-mail addresses from "somebody@darkwing.uoregon.edu" to "somebody@uoregon.edu." St Sauver said the changes were implemented to allow faculty and staff to have a shorter e-mail address that may convey a more professional or official appearance. All e-mail sent outbound will still have the "darkwing" prefix, however, unless users manually change the e-mail address in their user preferences.
