PFC

"I think in the spring it would be a fun gift to next year's PFC to do a bake sale — to show we (fundraise) too," she said.

PFC granted itself $9,311, a 15.41 percent increase. The Student Bar Association, also known as the ASUO of the law school, presented its budget to PFC. The hearing went an hour longer than expected when arguments over how much money PFC should give to the group's Moot Court split PFC in half.

"The problem that we are facing is we're under quite a few mandated constraints this year," Shull said.

Nair agreed and suggested SBA fundraise more money.

"I feel if SBA is the Executive of the law school ... what the Executive does is fundraise $20,000 for program support, and the Executive supports 150 different groups on this campus," she said.

PFC finally allocated SBA $9,822 — a 14.58 percent increase — which passed with a 4-3-0 vote.

PFC praised MEChA, but the committee was again constricted to previous spending patterns when it allocated MEChA funds for 2003-04.

"We're all so happy with the work you're doing, but we have to go by the numbers," Nair said, acting as chairwoman for the MEChA meeting.

PFC senator seat No. 3 Mike Sherman agreed, saying "exponential spending does not warrant exponential funding."

PFC granted MEChA a 14.17 percent increase, for a total budget of $18,845.

The YWCA was the only group to walk away from the meeting with a funding decrease, receiving $6,603 — a 7.46 percent decrease.

The Student Recreation Center received $697,147, a 29.72 percent increase.

The Student Insurgent was tabled due to time constraint, and the University Theatre was tabled until the group could provide more information on a summer camp for children to PFC.

Vandalism

Wednesday from the East 18th Avenue Hirons, after an employee reported what appeared to be a bullet hole in the walk-up pharmacy window on the east side of the building. At 8:32 a.m., a second caller reported that the window was simply broken.

Manager Steve Hirons said he believes the damage was made with a tire iron, leaving large cracks and holes in all of the three windows looking into the store. The newspapers were scattered below, Hirons said. Nothing was taken, but $3,000 in damage was reported. Hirons said he sees the incident as a reflection of misplaced anger.

"There's evil in the world," he said, "and this is an example of how some people can succumb to that evil."

The University Bookstore called EPD at 8 a.m. to report two broken windows, costing an estimated $500 in damage, in the front entrance. EPD reported a trail of blood leading around the building and down Kincaid Street. Manager James Williams said copies of the Emerald were pushed between the doors. Drops of blood also appeared on the glass, causing Williams to speculate it was punched in, and to question what would warrant such a violent action against the bookstore.

"We look at our customers as being honest," he said. "I just hope the individual does not try to do this again."

The bookstore's 24-hour indoor video surveillance system captured the crime at 4:25 a.m. and revealed what appeared to be one individual involved, Williams said. Footage of the incident is currently being evaluated by the bookstore's loss prevention staff.

"If any suspect information is obtained from the surveillance tapes, it will be included in any follow-up investigations," Delf said.

The newspapers were confiscated by EPD as evidence, Williams added. A third similar report was filed with EPD later in the afternoon, but the owner of the business declined to comment on the incident.
