

Call for Nominations Faculty Distinguished Teaching Awards

Deadline for Nominations: MONDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 2003

Faculty, staff, students, and alumni are invited to submit nominations for any faculty members, .5FTE or greater, tenure or non-tenure related, who have taught at the University of Oregon for a minimum of two (2) years. The Ersted Award and Thomas F. Herman Award are presented annually at Spring Commencement to University of Oregon faculty members for distinguished teaching. Each award will be accompanied by a recurring monetary reward. (Please note: Graduate Teaching Fellows have their own competition and are ineligible for these teaching awards.)

Eligibility for Awards

Ersted Award for Distinguished Teaching

The late Mr. A. J. Ersted established the Ersted Award for Distinguished Teaching so the University of Oregon could annually honor faculty members "who have taught comparatively short periods and have demonstrated exceptional abilities to induce students to reason and not merely memorize." The Ersted Award is presented only to faculty who are early in their teaching careers. This teaching may occur at the undergraduate or graduate level.

Thomas F. Herman Faculty Achievement Award for Distinguished Teaching

This award honors senior faculty members who have achieved outstanding records as teachers. The Thomas F. Herman Award is presented only to faculty members who have academic rank at the University of Oregon for at least seven years, and who have demonstrated long-standing excellence in teaching and have contributed significantly to student learning at the undergraduate or graduate level.

Nominations will be accepted either through submissions of the following form or by e-mail. If your nomination is e-mailed, please make sure that you include all the information contained on this form.

The computer lab in the EMU has less printing since it has started charging a per-page fee. Paper use is down 28 percent from last year.

Labs

5-cent-per-page printing fee initiated fall term.

The fee, which is charged at McKenzie, EMU, Klamath and Millrace computer labs, began in an attempt to reduce mountains of wasted paper and associated printing costs.

"We've seen a decrease in the number of people in the lab, and we're certainly saving paper," McCoy said. "People have said, 'It's about time.'"

Before the fee was initiated, EMU computer lab patrons used 2,009 sheets of paper every day. But now, it seems, students understand the value of saving a nickel. Last term, EMU lab patrons used 940 sheets daily, a savings of 82 pounds per week.

Millrace lab attendant Mauri Castle said paper waste from printing has decreased in all computer labs on campus. Although initially upset when the fee was initiated last fall, Castle said she thinks the surcharge has been successful.

"They wanted to reduce paper waste, and that is exactly what happened," Castle said.

By making students pay for what they use, it has made many reevaluate what they need, McCoy added.

"If anything, it has made people think. They're asking themselves, 'Do I really need this, or is this just a convenience?'" McCoy said.

Computing Center lab coordinator Mary Bradley said students printing in labs fall term paid $11,228 for printing, which equaled the University's expenses for paper, toner and software. Bradley said the amount of money spent on fall term printing was half as much as what it was during the same time last year.

"It shows we're charging the right amount because our revenue is matching our expenses," Bradley said.

According to the Native Forest Network, more than 90 million tons of paper are consumed in the United States annually. Paper reduction in the EMU computer lab alone will save more than two tons a year.

But despite the decrease in wasted paper generated by computer labs, Environmental Resources and Recycling Program Manager Karyn Kaplan said demands on campus recycling have only grown. Kaplan said the increase might be because of a 15 percent increase in students in the past several years.

"Through waste reduction and recycling," Kaplan said, "we're keeping the dam from breaking."
