Lorenzo will take the MCAT exam, the entrance exam for medical school, Saturday. He said the test is scheduled to last until 5 p.m., and he'll try to rush back to Hayward Field for the twilight portion of the Oregon Invitational, which starts at 3 p.m. He's planning to run the 4x400-meter relay, which is slated to start at 7:50 p.m.

"It's going to be good to get over here and run and get the stress out," Lorenzo said, "because my brain is going to be fried."

Lorenzo said he'll be glad to get his test out of the way so he can concentrate on winning his second NCAA decathlon title in three years.

"I'm taking it easy, getting better slowly, day by day," Lorenzo said.

Lorenzo will compete in the Pacific-10 Conference Championships decathlon May 10 and 11.

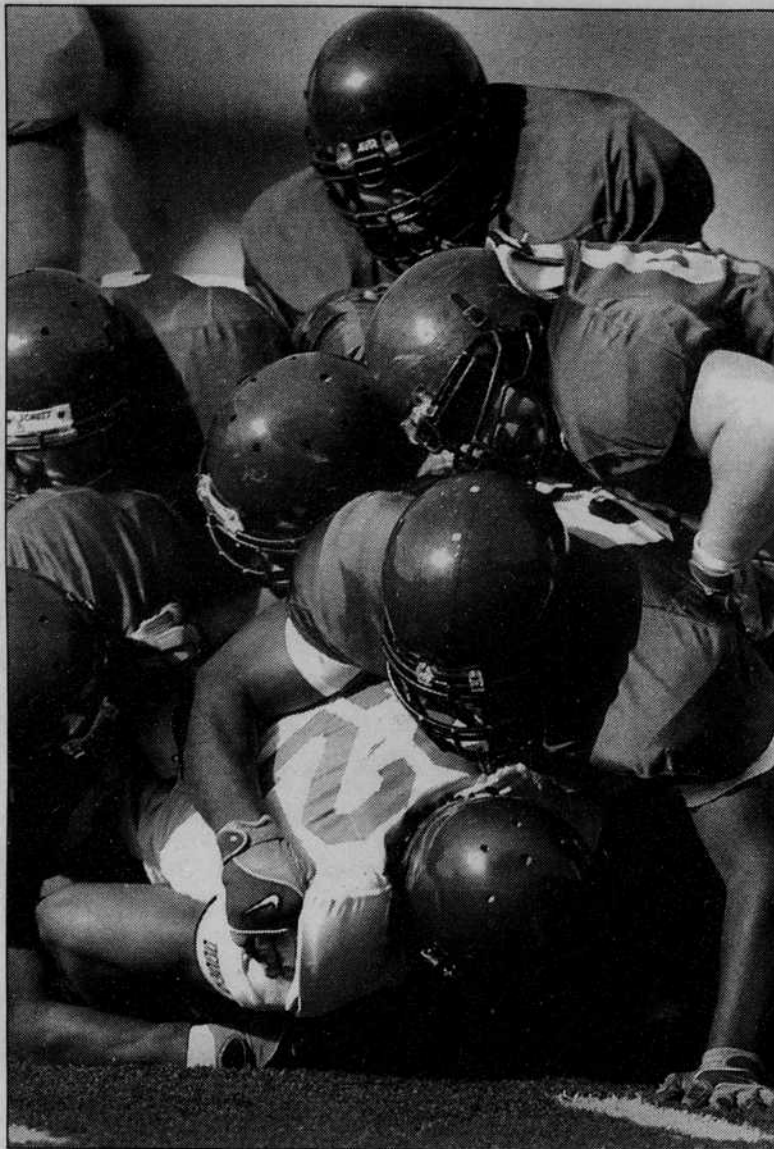

Samie = speed

Samie Parker has always been fast, but Saturday at the Mt. San Antonio College Relays, he proved he belongs among the fastest sprinters ever to run for Oregon. Parker clocked a personal-best 10.43-second 100 at the Mt. SAC Relays.

"I still think I've got a little bit of improvement," Parker said. "I think I can finish the race a little better and get a faster time."

Parker will get a chance to run that faster time at the NCAA regional meet later this season.

Chris Vincent (in white) gets under a pile of defensemen at Friday's scrimmage.

for the spring gives them an opportunity to join the team again in the fall. It is unlikely Oregon will keep three punters, much less two, which means what they do now can last throughout the summer.

But both are walk-ons, so just being out there can be a task. And with Jose Arroyo departed after last season, that task can take on added importance.

"It feels like a job when you're out here," Annis said. "The goal is to get the scholarship, definitely. But just being a part of Oregon football is a huge honor. It's definitely worth being a walk-on."

Vincent, Matson stand out

Head coach Mike Bellotti didn't have too many positive words about the Oregon defense after Friday's scrimmage, except to single out the play of safety Keith Lewis and linebacker Jerry Matson.

Matson, specifically, has had a bevy of solid spring practices so far.

"Jerry has always possessed great quickness," Bellotti said. "What he has to do is harness that quickness, harness that energy, and keep it under control so he doesn't out-run the play or run himself out of position. I think he's learning. Every day he's getting more experience with what the requirements of the position are."

Oregon's quartet of running backs has been impressive all spring, and Bellotti pointed out that the group played well on Friday. But he was also quick to mention Vincent, a redshirt last year after attending Louisiana State previously.

Vincent had 57 yards rushing on 15 attempts.

"Certainly, Chris Vincent drew some 'oohs and ahhs' from the crowd with some moves and some strength," Bellotti said.

Bellotti has not named a starter at running back and said Friday's scrimmage did not serve to separate the pack.

Pac-10 news and notes

Washington's Rich Alexis received a $350 fine after pleading guilty to a gross misdemeanor assault Friday in Seattle City Court. The running back had been charged with hitting a fraternity member at a party in February after Alexis denied entrance into the party. However, Alexis told the Seattle Times the incident was "blown out of proportion, but I was in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Arizona linebacker Kirk Johnson is also in trouble with the law. The Oakland, Calif., native was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and driving under the influence of drugs after being pulled over during a routine traffic stop Saturday.

He had been pulled over on the suspicion of having a false license plate.
