Stretch Your Summer

Check out the September Experience Program

September 2-12, 2003

- Short on group requirements?
- Looking for a unique way to wrap up your summer?
- Want to get ahead in your course of study?
- Excited to get back in the swing of classes?
- Does $500 for 4 credits sound like a deal to you?

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, you need to find out more about the September Experience Program. Resident and nonresident students take one course for 4 credits in nine days for just $500. All are group satisfying! Classes meet from 8:00 a.m. to 11:50 a.m. Monday - Friday. We have the courses you want, the courses you need, and the courses you should take. Courses are included in Summer '03 DuckHunt.

Thomas

age and hype has escalated from extreme to ridiculous in the last month. He's a lock at the number one spot. There are no rumors about that.

Is he the best ever at the high school level? Who cares. It's not about how good you are in high school. Kids are still growing facial hair and fighting acne.

The true test will come when he plays starting point for the Cavaliers next year. Will he be rookie of the year? Maybe. Will he lead the Cavs to an NBA title in year one? No.

I think he's a great player, and no one can deny him that. But give him at least five years before you see him shooting hoops in the heavens next to Tiger's putting green.

Last but not least, I'm getting tired of hearing about Rick Neuheisel and all this business about a suspension and his lawyers. Enough already. I never liked him anyway and he should have been gone long ago.

You don't gamble on college sports. Regardless of who you are, and especially if you are the coach of a Pacific-10 Conference football team. Worst of all, Neuheisel maintains he didn't realize he was breaking NCAA rules by gambling in a pool with friends and neighbors.

He must be crazier than someone who thinks that Tiger is in a slump or that LeBron won't go to Cleveland. My gossip is over for now. We'll have more to talk about soon.

the meet seeded 18th. The school record holder (252-10) was NCAA champion in 2001 but missed nearly the entire 2002 season after a knee injury.

"I came in gunning for the win, and even though it didn't happen, I have to be thankful that I had the opportunity to be here," Stiegeler said.

In his NCAA return, Adam Kriz finished fifth (220-2) in the javelin after entering the meet seeded seventh.

On the women's side, Oregon's pole vault duo led the way with top five finishes and All-American honors.

Redshirt senior Becky Holliday became Oregon's first individual women's NCAA champion since 1996. Holliday cleared 14 feet 5 1/2 inches to win the meet and break the meet record by a quarter-inch.

"It's a big relief to finally get it over with," Holliday said. "It's been a nerve-ending stretch. To train hard for two years for one day creates so many expectations and pressure."

Fellow senior Niki McEwen earned her fourth All-American honor in a fifth place finish at 13-5 1/4 that featured her best height in seven NCAA appearances.

McEwen wraps up a career at Oregon as one of the event's pioneers as collegiate women's pole vault just finished its fifth year.

In other field action, sophomore Roslyn Lundeen earned a top 10 finish in the javelin after entering the meet seeded 17th. Earning her second All-American honor, Lundeen finished eighth (159-0) after battling injury all season.

"It's been a tough year with a lot of distractions," Lundeen said, "so I should be pleased with another All-American effort. I had a lot more there today, but I couldn't handle the speed technically and kept losing my tip."

"It's been similar to the problems all year, but I did the best with what I had today."
