more about his people.

Spiegel said Levey loved nature, memorizing facts like the names of the world's major mountains and rivers.

"I think he taught us all that we should appreciate the beauty of the physical world and enjoy the outdoors," Spiegel said.

Levey also attended some of Eugene's Hillel programs, Jewish Campus

Rabbi, Chabad of Eugene

Service Corps Fellow Laura Don said. Don added that Levey was well-known among students and will be missed.

"He always had a wonderful energy and a positive attitude," she said. She remembers Levey for his creativity, noting that he once made some beautiful ceramic candlesticks and a spice box during a Judaica-making session.

Apart from being an ardent hiker, Levey also loved to run, his friends said. Don said he recently completed a marathon in Wisconsin.

Friends say Levey trained hard for the marathons, and that it seemed whenever he put his mind to something he would go all out to work for it. For instance, in 2000 he and his friend Eric Lam stayed up for 100 hours straight to raise money for the Ronald McDonald house.

Levey was buried Monday at the Mililani Memorial Park and Mortuary. He is survived by his mother and father, Joyce and Norman Levey, and a younger sister, Sara. A memorial will be held at 8 p.m. Sunday at Chabad of Eugene at 1307 E. 19th Ave.

Upon hearing of her son's death Friday, Joyce Levey said in a news conference in Hawaii that her son "died doing what he enjoyed."

Galinsky said Levey never let anything put him down. His favorite phrase was "Gam zulla tova" — which means "This is also for the good" — accepting that whatever happens is for a good reason.

"I'm sure wherever he is now, this isn't getting him down," Galinsky said. "He took advantage of life. He lived life to the fullest."

NEWS BRIEF

The Eugene Fire and Police departments responded to a natural gas leak at Streisinger Hall Tuesday.

EFD Spokesman Glenn Potter said three fire engines, two fire trucks and one district chief responded to the leak at 1390 Franklin Blvd. shortly before 5 p.m. A HAZMAT truck and an ambulance also responded, but EFD received no reports of injuries.

The University facility staff decided they would handle the leak at 5:19 p.m.; emergency personnel left the scene shortly thereafter.
