	15	@ UCLA, 12:30 p.m.
	22	Oregon State, 12:30 p.m.

When the Ducks line up Saturday against the Wolverines, sophomore Demetrius Williams will take his place on the line as Oregon's No. 2 featured receiver. When Samie Parker went down with an ankle sprain last week, Williams stepped up and scored three touchdowns, including a 65-yard strike. Against the Wolverines, it won't matter how much Parker plays. Quarterbacks Kellen Clemens and Jason Fife will need the entire offense to step up in order for the Ducks to be competitive. Jeremy LeSueur and Markus Curry are two of the better cornerbacks in the Big Ten Conference, so it is likely that at least Parker will have his hands full with the Michigan secondary. If Williams can come out of the gate with a big first quarter, emphasis will have to be spread on the entire Oregon passing game, possibly giving the Ducks the advantage. If Williams struggles early against Michigan like he did against Arizona, it could spell doom for the Ducks.

Junior Braylon Edwards has been the receiving equivalent of Chris Perry this season for the Wolverines. After switching to No. 1 this season — a coveted and prestigious uniform number for the Michigan program — he has caught 13 passes for 182 yards and three scores this season. The All-America and Biletnikoff Award candidate has 83 career receptions after two seasons with Michigan out of Bishop Gallagher High School in Detroit. Furthermore, he has caught at least four passes in all but one of his last 16 games. That only game came against Purdue last season, a contest in which he caught three passes for 71 yards. Also, he has scored touchdowns in 10 of his past 16 games since the start of the 2003 season. Against the Ducks, he will be the passing focus of quarterback John Navarre. If Perry can continue the success he has had on the ground against Oregon, Edwards should have fine a day against the Oregon secondary. If the Ducks' defensive line can shut down Perry, Edwards will have to have a big hand in Michigan's offensive attack. Edwards stands 6-foot-3, and weighs 210 lbs. That's quite taller than the Oregon secondary, where Steven Moore is 5-foot-9 and the team's other starting corner, Justin Phinisee, is 5-foot-10.
