suffering physical harm when you confront or question officers who appear to be acting in the line of their duty.

An ounce of prevention

The Eugene Police Department's "Party Patrol" watches for noisy parties and consumption of alcohol (keg cups, beer bottles, etc.). If any parties with alcohol "appear to have minors present," police may conduct a warrantless entry.

Avoid police contacts by skipping parties or gatherings that are noisy or serve alcohol. This may seem an unfair intrusion into private life, but attitudes today are not the same as they were in the 1970s. Police have established a "zero tolerance on underage drinking" policy that they zealously enforce.

Each case differs in its unique facts. To discuss how the law applies to your facts, see a lawyer immediately after your police contact. Lawyers from ASUO Legal Services can be reached at 346-4273.

Laura A. Fine is an attorney with ASUO Legal Services.

Welcome 2003-2004 Students

Have you ever looked at a map and wondered about the places shown on it?

Have you ever wanted to make your own map?

Are you interested in why the cities of Europe look so different from those of North America or Southeast Asia, why it is so much drier in Eastern Oregon than Western Oregon, or why rice is the dominant crop of Southeast Asia?

If so, take a look at the University of Oregon's Department of Geography and its courses in human, physical and regional geography; human environment relations and cartography/Geographic Information Science.

Selected Full Term Classes:

- The Natural Environment
- World Regional Geography
- Geography of Middle East/North Africa
- Maps/Geospatial Analysis
- Climatology
- Population and Environment
- Geography of Religion
- Introduction to Geographic Information Systems
