

PAC-10 PICKS

A note on how this works: The pickers (the sports staff, the editor in chief and the design editor) choose teams against the Las Vegas spread, meaning that if the picker chooses the favored team, that team would have to beat the spread — win by more points than the spread — for the picker to 'win' the pick.

(Spread in parentheses next to favored team)

HAGER

We battled our butts off."

Next, flash forward to the 2002 season. Oregon is off to a 6-0 start and looks invincible heading into the Oct. 20 game at Autzen Stadium.

The Sun Devils must have gotten the antidote to Oregon's hot start. They put 35 points on the board in a shootout — so much that Andrew Walter passed for 536 yards — and defeated the Ducks, 45-42.

There's no Harrington comeback this time, no monster runs by Onterio Smith either. Oregon, which led 21-10 at halftime, was all-out beaten.

In 2001, when the game wasn't close, the Ducks won, 42-24.

In 1999, Oregon won by just three, 20-17. Before that, in 1998, the Ducks hung up 51 points at Autzen. The year before that, the Sun Devils scored 52.

One would have to go all the way back to 1990 to find the last time either squad failed to score in double digits.

The schools are the poster boys for the Pacific-10 Conference. They've got quarterbacks who can throw, receivers who can glide and secondaries who are bare in the cupboard.

There's going to be a lot of "whoa nellys" from ABC's Keith Jackson on Saturday. It wouldn't be surprising to see either team post 50 points, and it wouldn't be surprising if the victor won the game in the waning moments of the game.

And if there's any doubt, just remember Peelle and his hands of gold.
