on top of their game for 60 minutes. The weather will be cold and the Golden Bears' offense is loaded. Tedford has a 1,000-yard receiver in Geoff McArthur and a 1,000-yard running back in Adimchinobe Echemandu at his disposal and won't hesitate to test an Oregon defense, which has allowed more than 40 points on three occasions.

Regardless of the weapons California has available, the key to Oregon's success comes back to playing a complete game. If Oregon wants to go to a bowl game, it most likely will need to win two of its remaining three games. It doesn't get any easier after the Bears as the Ducks travel to UCLA and host Oregon State to close out the regular season.

Matson said the Ducks have to play with intensity no matter what the score is if they are to return to their winning ways.

"Just taking on responsibility and having pride when you're ahead or behind (is important)," Matson said. "The same thing that prevents you from getting blown out is the same thing that prevents you from (blowing a lead)."

"Having pride in what you do every single snap, regardless of whether the chips are up or down, makes you play with that same intensity throughout the game."

pen now.

The players feel the urgency, but for some unknown reason — maybe a lack of focus or a lack of confidence, it's all just speculation — they can't pull their ship upright and win games they know they can and should win.

Perhaps if the best Huskies and Ducks had shown up at Saturday's game in Seattle, it would have ended the same way — with a Washington victory. My bet is that it would have at least been a scoreboard shootout — back-and-forth scores until time ran out and someone was left standing.

Either way, it would have made for a better game than the blowout that ensued.

Could the missing spark for Oregon be a magical player — a Joey "Heisman" Harrington player who is held on a national pedestal above the rest of his team?

Maybe the Ducks need to have that one figure for all the media attention and public scrutiny to focus on. Then the other players can just go about their jobs without worry of a story if they do really well or really horribly.

Whatever the problem is, Oregon needs to clear its head and figure out how to solve its woes. After one glorious season of 11-1 football in 2001, the bar is set at a superhuman level for future Ducks.

GIVE A PINT FOR YOUR TEAM
November 3 - 17

This year, Oregon's football teams won't just be competing for points ... they're out for blood.

Duck fans, friends, students, staff, and alumni are invited to roll up their sleeves and donate to the local blood supply in the 2nd Annual Civil War Blood Drive.

If you donate blood between November 3-17 you will receive a commemorative pin and know that you are helping others in our community.

For more information call the Lane Memorial Blood Bank at 541-484-9111 or visit www.lmbb.org.
