He's considered one of the top offensive minds in the collegiate game and has resurrected a program at California that once laid dormant. Golden Bear head coach Jeff Tedford is taking California to new heights in just his second season at the helm of the program. California went 7-5 last season, and more importantly, defeated rival and Big Game opponent Stanford, 30-7, something the team had failed to do in the previous seven years. Tedford has become a quarterback guru. At Fresno State, where Tedford served as the school's quarterbacks coach in 1992 and its offensive coordinator from 1993-97, he tutored current NFL quarterback Trent Dilfer and helped recruit Houston Texan David Carr. As Oregon's offensive coordinator from 1998-01, he mentored Joey Harrington, Akili Smith and A.J. Feeley. Last season, he helped turn Kyle Boller into the 19th overall pick in the 2003 NFL draft.
