trying to match its school record of 10-straight winning seasons with a winning percentage of .500 or above.

The last time Oregon had a losing season, Bellotti was the offensive coordinator.

"Up to this point, we still have the opportunity to have a winning season," Clemens said. "We still have an opportunity to go to a bowl game. I think that's keeping a lot of guys focused. But if we don't turn this thing around pretty soon, it's going to get bad. And then it will be over. It'll get bad and then it will be done. We don't want that."

The Ducks also want to show a former mentor that they're still as good as when he was coach.

Saturday night's game pits the Ducks against former offensive coordinator Jeff Tedford. Tedford is in his second year as head coach of the Golden Bears.

"It's much like when (Arizona State head coach) Dirk (Koetter) came back," Bellotti said. "They were parts of what we've done over the years. I'm very proud of what they've done on their own, and I respect a great deal what they contributed to the program when they were here, but now it's very much that they're the enemy so it's a very different mindset."

With Tedford leading California, the Ducks have said it's going to be like playing in a house of mirrors.

"It's going to be basically the Ducks playing the Ducks," Clemens said. "They do a lot of the same things we do."

Both teams are also one win away from the six-win minimum to be eligible for a post-season bowl game. Both teams want that opportunity with three weeks remaining in the season.

"We're still taking it one game at a time," Clemens said. "Each game grows more and more important as the season draws to a close."
