Civil War history marked by close games, tension

Five Civil War games have highlighted the tradition and rivalry between the schools

Listed below are the Civil War games that were down to the wire, hard-fought and rich in tradition; below are the best five games in the Civil War's history.

1964: Oregon State 7, Oregon 6

It was a game with bowl implications on the line. Oregon brought its 7-1 record into Parker Stadium against Oregon State and its 7-2 record.

Oregon had a 95-yard, nine-play drive that led to a touchdown. But Oregon had its extra point blocked, which proved to be costly.

With 5:43 left and the ball on the Oregon 43-yard line, Oregon State drove the field to score on a 3rd-and-goal with inches to go to tie the score, 6-6.

An Oregon State extra point made the score 7-6 with 57 seconds remaining in the game.

The "Webfoots" responded and moved to Oregon State's 38-yard line, where Oregon missed a 55-yard field goal.

The win sent Oregon State to the Rose Bowl. Oregon State ended the season 8-2, while Oregon finished 7-2.

1983: Oregon 0, Oregon State 0

While this game lives more in infamy than in prestige, the "Toilet bowl" cannot be left out of any conversations regarding the Civil War.

Oregon had a young Chris Miller as quarterback, in only his third start, and future NFL offensive lineman Gary Zimmerman in its lineup. All in all, the game featured 11 turnovers and four missed field goals.

Many of the players were recorded afterward as saying nobody wanted to win the game. Oregon had won eight consecutive Civil War games.

The Ducks finished the 1983 season with a record of 4-6-1, while the Beavers finished 3-3-1.

1994: Oregon 17, Oregon State 13

Oregon finished the season 9-3 and clinched the Pac-10's spot in the Rose Bowl. The team hadn't been to the Rose Bowl in 37 years. It was Oregon's first nine-win season since 1948.

"A nine-win season — there have not been a lot of those in Oregon football history," former Oregon head coach Rich Brooks said after the game. "I think this team has etched itself into the history books at the University of Oregon."

With 3:57 left in the game and Oregon down, 13-10, the Ducks faced a 3rd-and-7 on the Beavers' 36-yard line. The Ducks moved up the field to the Beaver 19-yard line, where quarterback Danny O'Neil hit tailback Dino Philyaw, who went untouched for his second touchdown on the day. It was a come-from-behind victory that propelled the team into the Rose Bowl.

"I have been waiting for this opportunity all year," Philyaw said. "To make the winning touchdown and to make a difference. Fortunately, it came in the biggest game of the year."

1998: Oregon State 44, Oregon 41

No. 15 Oregon traveled to Parker Stadium against a Beaver team that had not beaten Oregon since 1993. The 4-6 Beavers squared off against the 8-2 Ducks in a game that featured a two-overtime thriller.

Oregon State fans rushed the field in the first overtime assuming Oregon State had won the game, when on a 4th-and-12 from the 27-yard line, an Akili Smith pass to Tony Hartley was incomplete.

Fans had to be removed from the field as officials flagged Oregon State for pass interference. Oregon then was able to find the end zone and sent the game into a second overtime with the game tied, 38-38.

Oregon stalled there, but another pass interference call led to Oregon completing five-straight passes. The Ducks, however, settled for a field goal.

Oregon State received the ball on the second play and the Beavers' Ken Simonton ran 16 yards for the game-clinching touchdown.

The fans, this time, were allowed to rush the field and stay.

2000: Oregon State 23, Oregon 13

It was a game that haunted Joey Harrington throughout his career at Oregon. With the Pac-10 title on the line and a subsequent trip to the Rose Bowl, Harrington threw five interceptions.

Oregon split the Pac-10 Championship with the Beavers and Huskies. It was the most highly-touted football game in Civil War history.

Both teams entered the contest ranked in the nation's top 10.

The Beavers went on to the Fiesta Bowl and a No. 4 ranking, while Oregon played in the Holiday Bowl.

It also marked the arrival of big-time football in the state of Oregon, with both schools reaching their historical peaks within 14 months of one another.
