than 44 percent field shooting and six three-pointers — four fewer than Marshall's output against Kentucky earlier this week.

"We played a perfect game as far as doing what we needed to accomplish," Kent said. "We did exactly what we needed to do."

"I think the more we play, the better we are going to get."

Oregon had its scoring streaks throughout the game, but a six-minute scoring run late in the first half stretched the lead and gave the Ducks breathing room.

Brooks started the run with a layup, followed less than a minute later with a layup by Platt.

After Marshall's LaVar Carter scored the Thundering Herd's 18th point of the game, Ian Crosswhite and Brooks made four consecutive free throws — within 20 seconds of each other.

A jumper by Jackson put the Ducks up, 34-18, and almost three minutes later, Lincoln capped off the streak with a three-pointer.

"This year, I'm a lot more confident," Lincoln said. "I'm focusing on areas that I can attack more. Basically, it comes down to more confidence."

Lincoln finished with 10 points on 4 of 6 shooting.

Now, the Ducks will get some time off before focusing on final examinations. But it will be a short focus as Kansas looms large.

DEFENSE

touches," Oregon head coach Ernie Kent said. "We basically had six guys that defended him tonight at some point in time. We did a terrific job defensively."

Marshall made only one trip to the foul line in the first half and did not convert. In the second half, the Thundering Herd had a little more luck, shooting 7 of 10 from the foul line by throwing the ball down low more often.

Marshall outrebounded the Ducks, 33-30, but Oregon managed to grab more defensive rebounds with 21. More than seven minutes into the second half, Marshall had scored just five points; the Thundering Herd were a mere 37.9 percent from the field in the final 20 minutes.

"We took their deep range three-point shooter out of the game," Jackson said. "That made them switch up their offensive game plan and made some of the bigger guys handle the ball who weren't used to doing that, and we felt pretty good about that."

REBOUNDS

the game.

Colorado State entered the game with five players averaging double figures in scoring. Sophomore forward Melissa Dennett (14) and sophomore guard Vanessa Espinoza (10) were the only Rams to crack double-digits.

Mizusawa dished out a game-high seven assists for Oregon and Bills grabbed a team-high eight rebounds. Junior guard Kedzie Gunderson finished with seven points and sophomore guard Chelsea Wagner added six points on a pair of three-pointers.

Smith said the win will help Oregon continue the season with confidence.

"I think we're a little bit bent but we're not broken," Smith said. "I think we're fine. I think this team will go forward from this day and have great belief in themselves and what they can do when they play together."

A NEW WAY TO PRAY...

Healing Peaceful

Singing and Silence
in the style of the Taizé Community

Monday, December 8, 9:00 p.m.
Ben Linder Room EMU

Taizé is a style of prayer that uses Christian chants, silence, and short Bible readings to create a space in which one may simply rest. There is no preaching—just you, the music, and the beauty of the present moment. The whole atmosphere is relaxed, peaceful, inspiring, healing, and worshipful.
