Oregon football season tickets are on sale

The chance to purchase season tickets for the upcoming 2004 football season has finally arrived.

A limited number of season tickets went on sale to the general public on Monday at 9 a.m. There are three different seating options: general admission, preferred section reserved and Master Sky Suite.

General admission seating will cost $122 each for adults and $68 each for children (age 2 through high school) and seniors (age 62 and older).

Almost 40,000 season tickets have been sold for Oregon's upcoming 2004 campaign.

The Ducks have six games at home this season, beginning with Indiana on Sept. 11 and Idaho on Sept. 25.

Pacific-10 Conference play begins on Oct. 2 when Arizona State visits Autzen Stadium. Other Pac-10 conference foes to visit Eugene this season include Arizona on Homecoming day (Oct. 16), Washington (Oct. 30) and UCLA (Nov. 13).

Other notable games for Oregon this season include at Oklahoma on Sept. 18 and the 108th Civil War against Oregon State in Corvallis on Nov. 20.

UO golfer Matt Ma scores in top 15 at Amateurs

Oregon golfer Matt Ma is tied for 12th at the U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship in Maple Grove, Minn. after the first round on Monday.

Ma, who will be a redshirt sophomore for the Oregon men's golf team next season, shot a first round score of 75. On the first nine holes, Ma shot a score of 40 and then improved on the back nine, earning a score of 35.

Ma will tee off at 9:48 a.m. today at the 7,132-yard, par-72 Rush Creek Golf Club. The lowest 64 scorers after 36 holes move on to 18-hole match play beginning next Wednesday.

The Aiea, Hawaii native advanced to the national tournament after winning a qualifying tournament in Hawaii, in which he shot a 62 in the first round. In the second round, he shot a 70 for a total of 132. His lowest round ever as a freshman was a 71.

Ma played in 11 of 12 events as a freshman and had a 75.2 scoring average. He tied for 13th at the Oregon Duck Invitational and tied for 24th at the Pacific-10 Conference Championships.

attempts to clear 17-8 1/2. Skipper would have qualified for the event final if he cleared the bar on one of his first two tries.

Strong crosswinds proved to be the deciding factor and made things difficult for the pole vault competitors, who had a short one minute window between each attempt, Skipper said.

"The crosswinds were really bad," said Skipper, who was the youngest competitor in the field at 19 years old. "It was difficult for the time we had to jump to get a good wind.

"When guys are only jumping 17-8 and making the final, it's indicative of the wind. It screwed me up just like everybody else. When that happens, you're not able to relax."

Skipper said he will have to get used to the conditions in Sacramento as the NCAA Championships will emanate from Alex G. Spanos Sports Complex at Sacramento State University in 2005, 2006 and 2007.

"I have to learn to jump in windy crosswind conditions like this and find meets during the regular season that emulate Sacramento... NCAA's are going to be here for three years and I won't be able to control the conditions then, either."

— Tommy Skipper
Oregon Pole Vaulter

"I have to learn to jump in windy crosswind conditions like this and find meets during the regular season that emulate Sacramento," Skipper said. "NCAA's are going to be here for three years and I won't be able to control the conditions then, either."

The Sandy native will now look forward to time off after a record-breaking 2004 season, which saw him become the NCAA and Pac-10 champion in the pole vault. Skipper also won the Pac-10 decathlon in his first time ever competing in the event. In late May, he also broke the school and Pac-10 records in the pole vault at 18-10 1/4.

Skipper said he will now enjoy some time off to forget about his performance in Sacramento and then prepare for next season.

"I can't worry about (the Trials)," Skipper said. "I have to go out and jump higher next year and do better at the big meets. That means I'll have to work harder in practice to help meet those goals."
