

Geography Professor Andrew Marcus, who specializes in hydrology and geomorphology, is president of the University Senate. In addition to overseeing Senate activities, he sits on the Olympic Park Institute's Board of Trustees.

Director Charles "Dusty" Miller heads operation of the Erb Memorial Union, which boasts an annual budget of $3.6 million. Miller has worked in student unions for more than 30 years and has been at the University since 1992. Miller is an Albany, N.Y., native who holds a bachelor's degree in history and a masters in student personnel administration.

John Moseley, the senior vice president and provost, oversees the University's academic, research and student-related activities. An alumnus of what is now the Stanford Research Institute and a fellow of the American Physical Society, he is also involved in the University's diversity and international programs.

ASUO President Adam Petkun, a native of Aloha, is a senior majoring in political science and economics. Petkun oversees the ASUO Executive and functions as the official spokesperson for University students within and outside the University.

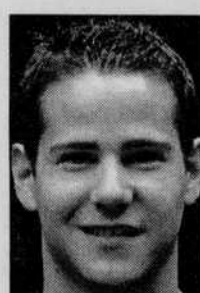

Allan Price, a two-decade veteran of public higher education, has served as vice president for university advancement since 2001. Price oversees development, strategic communications, governmental affairs, trademark management and the UO Alumni Association.

ASUO Vice President Mena Ravassipour is a senior general science major from Milwaukie, Ore. Ravassipour is responsible for several budget recommendations, serves as an ex officio member of the Senate and would assume the duties of presidency in case of Petkun's absence.

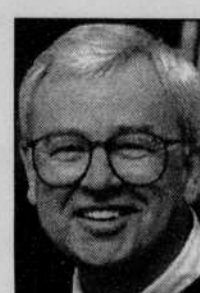

Dr. Tom Ryan has served as director of the University Health Center since summer 2003. With a background in both private practice and university health centers, Ryan's principal roles are to provide leadership and support for center staff and to ensure smooth communication among departments.

ASUO Public Relations Director Nathan Strauss has been a member of student government since his freshman year at the University. The Corvallis native has also worked as a marketing intern and elections board publicity coordinator. Strauss, 19, is a journalism student taking the public relations sequence. He said his favorite parts about working in the ASUO are his co-workers and gaining good experience in public relations.

Biology Professor Emeritus Frank Stahl, the first scientist to demonstrate how DNA replicates, works in the Institute of Molecular Biology. Dr. Stahl, who authored an (unpassed) University Senate resolution criticizing the war in Iraq, hands out articles critical of the war and the Bush administration on 13th Avenue.

Vice President for Administration Dan Williams, a University alumnus, served as ASUO student body president his senior year. He is responsible for business affairs, intercollegiate athletics, public safety and human resources, and serves on the Board of Directors of the Oregon Forest Resource Initiative.
