University of Oregon vs. UCLA Bruins

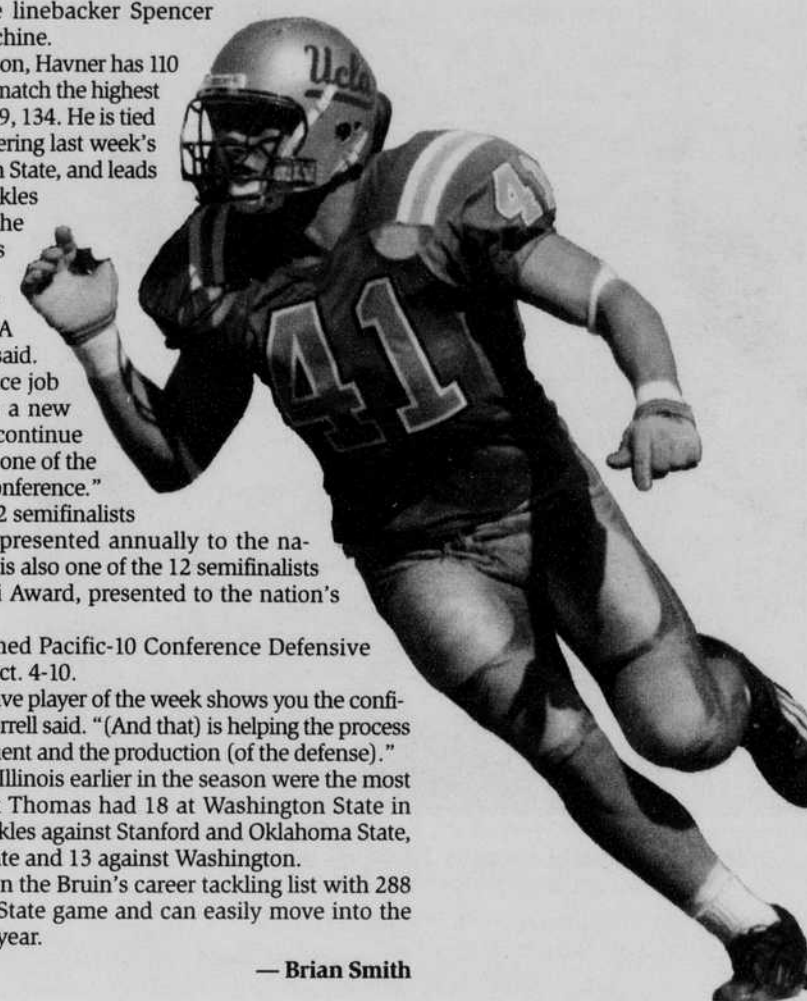

Fullback
Dante Rosario

Oregon sophomore Dante Rosario is a fullback and a whole lot more. "He's a playmaker," Oregon head coach Mike Bellotti said. "And we need to find a way to get him the ball." Rosario has seven rushes for 25 yards and one touchdown this season, but has proved himself a potent receiver, catching 19 balls for 168 yards and four touchdowns. His four receiving touchdowns rank second on the team. Rosario came to Oregon possessing the ability to play multiple positions on the football field. The Dayton High School standout played on both sides of the ball and earned Oregon 2A state defensive player of the year honors, as well as first-team all-state honors on both offense and defense in 2002. He posted 144 tackles and three sacks as a free safety and middle linebacker to go along with 1,238 yards rushing his senior year. He was vital in his team's state championship victory over Amity, rushing for four touchdowns and 126 yards. "He can be the single-back ball carrier," Oregon offensive coordinator Andy Ludwig told the Oregonian. "He can be the second tight end. He can be the lead blocker. He can line up in wide receiver positions. And all with equal effectiveness." Rosario played in all 13 games as a freshman at Oregon and showed a knack for running and catching the football. Rosario carried the ball 17 times for 58 yards and a score and had 12 receptions for 131 yards last season. He had three catches for 36 yards and a touchdown against Minnesota in the Sun Bowl. Rosario was awarded the Len Casanova Award as the team's top newcomer.

Linebacker
Spencer Havner

UCLA's junior inside linebacker Spencer Havner is a tackling machine. In nine games this season, Havner has 110 tackles and is on pace to match the highest total by a Bruin since 1989, 134. He is tied for fifth in the nation entering last week's game against Washington State, and leads the nation in solo tackles (8.11) and is sixth in the country in total tackles per game (12.22). "He is definitely racking up the tackles," UCLA head coach Karl Dorrell said. "He has done a really nice job of getting acclimated to a new position. He needs to continue that trend and he will be one of the best linebackers in our conference." Havner is one of the 12 semifinalists for the Butkus Award, presented annually to the nation's top linebacker. He is also one of the 12 semifinalists for the Rotary Lombardi Award, presented to the nation's top lineman. Havner was also named Pacific-10 Conference Defensive Player of the Week for Oct. 4-10. "Spencer being defensive player of the week shows you the confidence of the defense," Dorrell said. "(And that) is helping the process in terms of the improvement and the production (of the defense)." His 17 tackles against Illinois earlier in the season were the most by a Bruin since Robert Thomas had 18 at Washington State in 2001. He recorded 16 tackles against Stanford and Oklahoma State, 14 against San Diego State and 13 against Washington. Havner ranked 14th on the Bruin's career tackling list with 288 before the Washington State game and can easily move into the top 10 by the end of the year.
