quantum spin-off regression is correct (one "M*A*S*H" is equal to 10 "Trapper John, M.D.'s"), than this movie threatens to rip the very fabric of space and time, creating a black hole from which Jennifer Garner's career will never escape. And the peasants rejoiced.

Opening the peasantry that is "Assault on Precinct 13," a re-make of John Carpenter's classic directed by some Frenchman. Jan. 28 will fulfill the wish of everyone who dreamed of James Cameron being sunk to the bottom of the ocean, with the release of the director's new documentary, "Aliens of the Deep." Essentially this boils down to 3-D scuba shots of big, ugly creatures better left underwater.

Speaking of things better left at the bottom of the ocean, "Pooh's Heffalump Movie" opens Feb. 11, making a quick stop in theaters in order to suck every last consumer dollar possible out of the franchise.

Happy film going, movie lovers.
