

Oregon Country Fair

images from the 36th annual festival

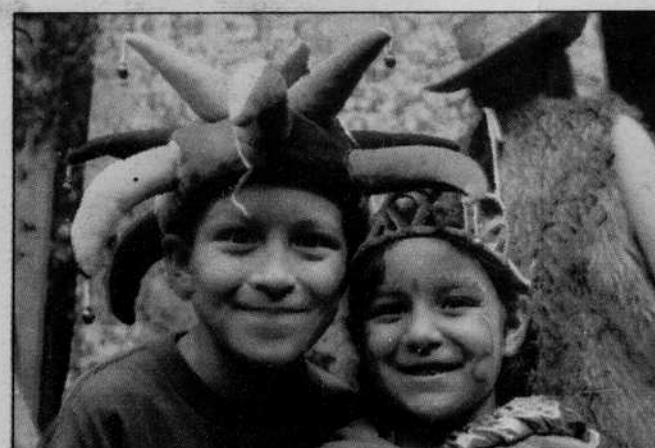

Right
Kirpal Khalsa (checkered shirt) plays a game of giant chess against Ryan Slaterry (black shirt) Friday at the Oregon Country Fair. They were both first year fair-goers and Ryan has been playing chess since he was 9 years old.
Craig Volpe | Freelance photographer

Right
Caleb Soltau of Seal Rock, Ore., teaches Nolan Kelly of Corvallis how to make fire at the Oregon Country Fair on Sunday. Caleb has been attending the Country Fair for 27 years and has been learning primitive skills for the last four years.
Craig Volpe | Freelance photographer

Below
Cooper and Kerna Mather listen to the group Taarka at the Oregon Country Fair on Friday. They both agreed that the music was their favorite part of the fair.
Craig Volpe | Freelance photographer

Above
During her second year at the fair, Barbara Maynard from Grants Pass gets her face painted by Erika Milo.
Tim Bobosky | Photo editor

Below
Royal Famille du Caniveaux performs on Friday at the Oregon Country Fair.
Craig Volpe | Freelance photographer

Above
Geneva Jolley, mother of the late Ken Kesey, enjoys her time at the Oregon Country Fair on Sunday. Jolley is 88 years old and jokingly says she has been attending the fair since the 1800s.
Craig Volpe | Freelance Photographer

Below
Ivy Elwyn of Santa Rosa, Calif., dances at the drum tower the first day of the fair. She sells fairy costumes online and this is her 13th fair. Elwyn's first fair was when she was 3 months old.
Tim Bobosky | Photo editor

Below
Five-year-old, Kaitlin Stacey eats pizza at her fifth Oregon Country Fair with her parents and friends Friday afternoon.
Tim Bobosky
Photo editor

