Water leakage during the break caused damage to floors on all levels of the EMU's east wing and to some walls on the ground floor.

Damage: Insurance expected to pay most of bill annex," Stanik wrote. A contractor is working on the flooded annex basement already, but the water source is unknown so far. "(We) estimate it will cost $25,000 to correct."

"We are planning to consolidate all of these matters into one claim which will have a $2,500 deductible, but we expect the state's risk management to eventually approve most of the claim," Stanik wrote.

Students help pay for these sorts of damages, but because the University is a state entity, it is covered under the state's insurance. Each term, 5 percent of the $191 incidental fee paid by each student is put into a Prudent Reserve Fund, which Miller said will be used to pay most of the $2,500 premium. Miller said he is unsure if there is a limit to how much the state will pay for such losses.

The actual damage estimate will come in the next couple weeks and the University has not yet given a timeline for construction.

Raasch: Child pornography found on laptop

Delf said.

The file police viewed was titled "The Rape of 9-year-old Piggy."

There was no indication Raasch was involved in the creation of the video, Delf said.

Attempts to contact Raasch on Sunday were unsuccessful because his number was disconnected.

To commit the crime of encouraging child sexual abuse in the second degree, a Class C felony, a person must knowingly possess, control, buy or trade a visual depiction of "sexually explicit conduct involving a child for the purpose of arousing or satisfying the sexual desires of the person or another person," according to Oregon law. A person must also consciously disregard "the fact that creation of the visual recording of sexually explicit conduct involved child abuse."

Raasch received his Bachelor of Science from the University in spring 2004, according to the Office of the Registrar. He enrolled as a graduate student in summer 2004 and has taken classes through fall 2005. He had not enrolled in classes for winter term as of Friday afternoon, but was eligible to enroll.

Allen: UO freshman charged with three felonies car was parked in the Pizza Pipeline parking lot, which is also within 1,000 feet of Franklin School.

Allen was arrested and lodged at Benton County jail and charged with possession of a controlled substance, delivery of a controlled substance and delivery of a controlled substance within 1,000 feet of a school — all felonies. He was also cited for minor in possession of alcohol.

"I can't say anything except that the Corvallis Police Department must be bored," Allen wrote in an e-mail to the Emerald. He also wrote that he is currently living in Corvallis and is attending classes at Linn Benton Community College this term with plans to later transfer to Oregon State University.

The Emerald was not told whether Allen was expelled because University officials believe he dealt drugs while in Eugene, but, according to the conduct code, "brokering or possession of controlled substances on University-owned or controlled property or at University-sponsored activities" is a punishable offense. The code does not mention being caught with a controlled substance outside of University property as an offense.

Breaking this rule would likely result in suspension or expulsion from the University, Student Judicial Affairs Director Chris Loschiavo said.

"If we have good reason to believe a resident deals drugs in town, out of town, or on campus, it would be a serious problem," said Mike Eyster, assistant vice president for student affairs and director of housing. "Our goal is to create an environment that is safe. People that sell drugs create a dangerous environment.

"A number of folks around town buy marijuana," he said. "Occasionally they buy from kids in the dorms and occasionally we find out."
