Earlier in life he traveled out of Portland for a wholesale hardware house, and was county clerk of Illinois for 15 years before coming to Oregon.

F. P. Clark, of Philomath, protests that the train service between Philomath and Corvallis is very inadequate. The one train each way a day allows Philomath people less than two hours in this city between trains. If they desire to transact business requiring any time at all they must remain here over night. He says the Philomath people dislike this arrangement very much, and feel that Philomath is entitled to great consideration. It is claimed that traveling Representative Jenkins promised them some different sort of arrangement.

Postmaster Johnson has been notified that the department is now preparing a new postage stamp of special design, which will be ready for issue to postmasters about September 20, to commemorate the discovery of the Hudson river by Henry Hudson in 1609, and of the introduction of steam navigation on its waters by Robt. Fulton in 1807. The stamp is oblong in shape.

Yesterday's Oregonian contained the shocking account of the killing, in Portland, of a little child of less than two years of age, by the streetcar of Conductor J. E. Coleman, an old O. A. C. student, who married Miss Sadie Dixon, formerly of this city, and for years an efficient bookkeeper and stenographer at R. H. Houston's hardware store. The parents of the little child are prostrated with grief, and to the many friends here who have learned to know of the splendid qualities of both Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, the news will be received with deepest regret. It is a well known fact here that Mr. Coleman is considered one of Portland's most courteous, conscientious and careful streetcar conductors and friends attach no blame to him. The mortician on the car was so overcome that he was unable to give a statement of the affair.

A few days ago a well-known citizen of the county missed a purse containing considerable money. He remembered having it at a certain place, and did not see it after. He recalled that a boy was near the last time he saw the purse, so he immediately insisted to himself and others that the boy had stolen the purse. A few days later the prominent citizen left that identical purse on the counter of a certain store and yet he insisted that the boy had stolen it. The boy's relatives became aroused and with aid of city officials convinced the prominent citizen that he had accused the boy unjustly, and under threat of prosecution he proceeded about the city telling to all, to whom he had previously accused the boy, that he had made a mistake. Occurrences of this kind are extremely unfortunate and should lead the people to be careful in the matter of making accusations.

The change of program offered at the Palace theater last night is a strong one. There are three really excellent films, "The Way of the Cross" being the best of the three. This is a story of the struggles of the early Christians in Rome during the reign of Nero, the tyrant, is well staged and acted and is intensely interesting throughout. "Cold Plunge in Moscow" shows a man taking a swim in the river at Moscow, Russia, with the thermometer below zero. "An Heroic Father" is also good, being the story of a father's rescue of his son from a band of brigands. While Miss Spangler makes the most possible of the songs, they are punk. The bill will be repeated tonight.

A great many Eugene people are going to burn coal this winter instead of wood, says the Guard. This is almost an innovation in Oregon and the West, but in the East the woodsaw is as frequently seen as the coal wagon is here. Several Easterners have during the past few winters moved here with coal stoves that are used to coal furnaces only. Looking the matter up they find that it is possible to ship coal at almost the same price as wood. So it happens that this winter much more is being seen in town than previously. The cost here is about $10 a ton, for coal that sells in the East for $3 and $4, but with the cost of oak, maple and fir wood ranging from $5 to $6 a cord it is really as cheap to burn one fuel as the other. The coal is generally considered much the easier and more convenient. A bin in the cellar takes up much less room than the unsightly woodshed and the coal hod and small shovel beside the stove is more easily handled than the wood box and pleases the small boy that has to split wood. In a few years, perhaps, when the price of wood has advanced another notch or two, coal will be shipped here in greater quantities, and sold at a price so that the begrimed coal man with his baskets or coal shute is a familiar character.

D. H. Leech, pastor of the First M. E. church, leaves in a few days for Forest Grove to attend the annual meeting of the Oregon Conference. His two sermons next Sunday may be his last here, as the Methodist authorities have a habit of changing pastors from place to place over-frequently, and they may send Mr. Leech to some field where strenuous work is needed. In two years' work at the local church, Mr. Leech has performed excellent service, adding many members to and freeing his church from debt. He is an earnest, conscientious worker, a pleasant, approachable gentleman, a pastor who has gained the good will of a large majority of the people of the city and enjoys the love and esteem of those with whom he is most closely associated. Corvallis will regret it very much if Pastor Leech is not returned to the charge here.

PUBLIC SALE OF STOCK

W. H. Curry, residing about seven miles northeast of Corvallis, and one mile north of Granger, will hold a stock sale on Tuesday, September 14, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m.

The stock will consist of 19 head of Jersey cattle, full bloods and high grades; ten head are mature cows, the other nine two year old and yearling heifers.

This herd has been one of the most profitable little dairy herds in this part of the valley for the past few years, nothing but full blood sires being used; also the milk from each individual cow has been weighed and tested and all unprofitable stock sent to the block.

Every farmer should own at least one good cow and this is a chance to secure them.

Mr. Curry also offers seven head of young Berkshire hogs, full blood.

There will be a free lunch served at noon.

A. L. Stevenson will be the auctioneer.
