GOV. JOHNSON,

In 1898 he was elected state senator and again in 1900. In 1904 he was elected governor by a plurality of 8000, while Roosevelt carried the state by 161,000. Two years later he was re-elected by 88,000. Again he was made governor last year.

Johnson was not a "society light." Both he and Mrs. Johnson long ago made up their minds that there was nothing much to be gained by drinking afternoon tea in unlimited quantities. Although they met all the social demands that go with the gubernatorial office, they have stopped there. Mrs. Johnson is as much of a reader and student as the governor, and when anything of moment comes up it was to his wife that he turned for decisive counsel.

Did Not Want Presidency

When he was talked of for the presidency, the subject of his making a speaking tour throughout the country to show himself to the people was brought up. His friends thought it would be an excellent plan. But right away Johnson modestly stepped in and the plan was doomed before it had been half outlined.

"I've been elected governor of Minnesota. I'm employed to work for the people of Minnesota, and here I stay," he said. And all that argument and pleading could get out of him were two speeches, one in Virginia and one in Alabama, and the Alabama speech was made after the people of the state had refused to indorse him for the presidency.

Republican Gets Office.

Until the next election the affairs of the state will be guided by Lieutenant Governor Everhart, a Republican, who now becomes its governor.

SONGS SUNG BY THE BIG SHOW

"Thursday is My Jonah Day," "The Waning Honeymoon," "Blow the Smoke Away," "I Don't Like Your Family," "First and Only," "It's Lonesome Tonight," "Uncle Sam's Best Girl," "Dixie I Love You," "Don't You Tell" and ten other big musical hits are now being sung with "The Time, The Place and The Girl" company, which will be offered here Monday, Sept. 27, at the Corvallis Opera House. Will H. Hough, Frank R. Adams and Joseph Howard, a trio that is hard to beat for a comedy with music, are responsible for the production. The play is undoubtedly in a class of its own. It is unquestionably the best musical aggregation now touring the coast. It has a unique plot, catchy music, pretty girls, a chorus of fifty, who are always full of ginger from beginning to end.

ELITE OPENING A BUSY ONE

The fall opening of the Elite Millinery and Furnishings store, with Beauty Parlor attachment, has been visited by a large number of ladies today. Up to 2 o'clock no less than 138 ladies had passed the portals, and it was expected that the greater number of visitors would put in their appearance between three and six o'clock.

The store is decorated attractively with cut flowers and millinery foliage, and in the rest room Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are serving delicious punch and welcoming old and new patrons to their new quarters. The latest millinery creations—an array that is a delight to woman-kind and a bewilderment to the male escort—are arranged on tables through the center of the store and on counters at the side, and at the rear in specially fitted parlors the ladies already beautiful are being made even more beautiful under the skillful touches of an expert beauty artist. The scene is really a busy one and pleasing alike to visitors and proprietor. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson expressed themselves at 2 o'clock as more than pleased with the showing at that time and are inclined to feel that the Corvallis public is going to show appreciation of their effort to give the city an establishment as thoroughly attractive and up-to-date as any outside of the large cities.

leads the general strike of the guests. Cunningham, however, proves an efficient strike breaker by jerking off his coat and declaring physical supremacy.

Meanwhile, the main love story which has been developing—that of Hicks and the head nurse, Molly Kelly—is entirely out of the ordinary. Added to the complications in which Hicks finds himself, is an enforced treatment of the water-cure, caused by a patient who has been sent to the sanitarium. The latter has been directed by his physician to deliver a letter of instructions to the head nurse. This letter he gives to Hicks, and using Hicks' own language, "Patsy got a free bath."

Among some of the others in quarantine are an attractive widow and her spoiled son; an Italian organ grinder who falls in love with the widow, after posing as a "gentleman" and is given a heart-breaking refusal; and a coal heaver who tried to escape on account of wanting to get married next morning.

Although the comedy is written to give supremacy over the music there are ten musical numbers, including, "Thursday Is My Jonah Day," "The Waning Honeymoon," "Blow the Smoke Away," "I Don't Like Your Family," "Don't You Tell," "First and Only," and "Dixie I Love You," and "Uncle Sam's Best Girl."

SOME OF THE CREDIT GOES TO THE ESKIMO

Without Him Pole Hunting Would Be Very Difficult.

HARD WORKER, BUT DIRTY.

Plenty of Water Around His Land, but None of It Ever Touches Him—Arctic Air Keeps Northern Men in Good Health.

In spite of their differences regarding the discovery of the north pole and other matters, in one thing Commander Peary and Dr. Cook are in thorough agreement. With the other men who have sought "farthest north" records they declare that expeditions to or toward the pole would be almost if not quite impossible without the aid of the Eskimos. Almost all of the long line of arctic explorers have fully acknowledged their indebtedness to the men of the north for their familiarity with arctic conditions and their willingness to work as sledge drivers and burden bearers.

The only true Eskimos on this continent live on the west coast of Greenland from Upernavik to Etah, in the heart of the arctic, less than 700 miles from the pole, where so many fearless explorers have spent their long, dark winter night before the final dash on foot and sledges over ice and hummocks of ice.

With all their virtues of industry, honesty, peaceableness and docility the Eskimos are the filthiest people in the world. They never wash, not even face and hands. The smell of their fur clothing and secretions from the skin causes an odor about their persons, and especially in their igloos and tents, that is unbearable to tenderfeet. Living in huts of stone or ice in winter, in sealskin tents in summer, Eskimos never marry in the sense we use this word, but mate like animals. Swapping of mates for an indefinite time is common. Eskimos are the most widely scattered people on the globe, dwelling together in small bands, without central authority or government. There are less than 40,000 Eskimos all told.

Safe From Many Diseases.

Eskimos live almost entirely on raw animal food, and this explains the absence of a number of diseases which are common to civilization. Scurvy, so common and deadly among early polar explorers, is totally unknown among Eskimos who eat raw meat. This raw food also explains the absence of enlarged tonsils, glands and goitre. Their perfect, splendid teeth and strong lower jaws mark them completely carnivorous. The exclusion of vegetable food has shortened their intestine, and indigestion is unknown. One would suppose their pure flesh diet would cause biliousness, etc., but the large percentage of oil in their food acts as a gentle laxative and protects them against all harm. The Eskimo eats with relish old rotten blubber that would stagger a buzzard.

Consumption is unknown among the Eskimos in the north, nor is there any skin or bone form of tuberculosis, but when brought to the United States they contract consumption in most virulent form. Of six brought to New York all contracted the disease in less than six months. One who returned to his arctic home made a quick cure. It is well known that the long arctic winter, with its depressing effects on body and mind, often upsets the best balanced nervous system, even of the natives. But this hysteria vanishes with the summer. Explorers have suffered in the same way, and two have committed suicide. In summer Eskimos get so full blooded that nose-bleeding is very common.

All degenerative diseases that cause so much suffering and death in civilization are absent from the Eskimos. The pure, sterile arctic air contains no germs, but the natives invariably take a bad "ship cold" when they go aboard white men's ships. Nature acts the good sanitarian in the far north and shuts the door against all disease germs. The use of remedies either inside or out is unknown. Wounds heal up at once without marring. All tumors, warts and cancers are unknown.

Walrus Hunting Is Perilous.

The large number of children and lusty young widows shows the dangers of walrus hunting. The kayak, in which the hunting is done, is a very frail craft. The Eskimo can't swim. The wounded walrus tears or sinks the little skin canoe, and widow, children and relatives become common charges.

At a distance it is difficult to distinguish an Eskimo man from his mate, as the sexes dress similarly. The outer clothing consists of trousers and a coat fitting close to the body and covering the head by a prolongation of the coat, like a hood. The clothing is made of the skins of seals, land animals and birds. Some of the southern Eskimos have been Christianized, and their mode of life has been brought somewhat into conformity with civilized ideas. The great majority of them, however, believe in a crude form of nature worship and hero veneration.

First Case of September Strawberries. The first September strawberries ever heard of in New Jersey were placed on sale in Belvidere, N. J., at fancy prices. They came from the farm of David Miller, just across the river in Pennsylvania. He has been experimenting with late berries and declares that they are just as good as those which bloom in June.

Wear it right out of the store

Select any Red Cross style you wish, a dainty dress shoe, a snug walking boot or a shoe for general wear. Put it on in the store and you can walk home in it, wear it all day in perfect comfort. It is comfortable the moment you put it on.

The sole of the Red Cross Shoe, tanned by the special Red Cross process, is flexible. It bends with your foot. It entirely prevents the burning, drawing and aching that stiff soles cause.

The styles this fall are extremely becoming, they make your foot look better than it ever did. Let us show them to you.
