In the cast of "The Time, The Place And The Girl" there is a little girl who tips the scales at 100 pounds. She is Jessie Houston, and she has a most important part. She was ambitious and a hard worker; she watched every line and every move: she received good notices from the critics, she wanted to be a star. That was the height of her ambitions. Every one said she was full of talent. One night one of the principals fell and sprained her ankle. "Now is my chance," said Miss Houston, and running up to the stage manager said, "I'll play the part," and without a moment's hesitation she jumped in and made good, got the best notices in the show and today she plays the "Girl." "All I can say," said Miss Houston, "is it's fate. I wanted to be great, and this is my beginning."

The remains of Miss Evelyn Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Smith, who died Monday, Sept. 20, at 2:15 a. m. at the age of 21 years, were buried at Crystal Lake cemetery yesterday, Tuesday, afternoon. A funeral service at the Methodist church was attended by sympathizing friends, and many floral offerings attested the love and esteem of those more intimately associated. Rev. Leech officiated at the service.

For Sale—8-roomed house on one lot at 2nd and Van Buren, Phone 3240.

Uncle Joe Yates, while enroute to Albany yesterday, saw two sights that impressed him differently. One was that of boys driving goats hitched to wagons. The youngsters were having a great time and were bowling along with the speed of an auto—a slow one. The other was that of three suspicious looking characters, one of whom proposed to stop him for a chat or something else. Uncle Joe told the fellow he did not have time to parley with him and drove on. From the appearance of the men, he is inclined to think Corvallis people had better watch their chicken coops for a few nights.

Furniture, stoves, ranges, etc., at Kempin's store. 103 N. 2nd St. 17-25

The draymen and S. P. officials settled a difference today, one of the higher-ups coming down and straightening out the difficulty, which arose over the disposition of the draymen to discontinue their habit of helping to unload freight from the cars. The draymen figured out that they were doing work not reasonably required of them, so the draymen refused to pay for freight until it was unloaded. The freight office figured that it could not unload freight not paid for—so for a time the business men did not get freight. The big official settled the difficulty by agreeing to put on an extra freight rustler, or two, thus letting the draymen out of their former work.

Walkover shoes for men, at Kline's. 9-20-tf

M. J. Fanning, the Irish orator, will speak at the Congregational Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Temperance issue. Mr. Fanning is one of the most noted speakers of this country, having delivered nearly fifteen thousand addresses on that subject in the United States and Canada. Everybody is cordially invited. Admission free. In his youth Michael J. Fanning was led to consecrate his life to warfare against the saloon. For more than a quarter of a century he has traveled and spoken in the interest of the prohibition cause. He stands today with few equals, and certainly no superiors on the temperance platform. A large audience should greet this famous lecturer.

Phonographs and all the newest records at Heater & Harrington's. 9-3-tf.

Hon. B. W. Johnson, postmaster of that rapidly growing city, Corvallis, is now at Portland, that other growing village of Oregon, preparing for the coming of Postmaster General Hitchcock. Mr. Johnson is secretary of the Presidential Postmasters' Association of Oregon and that body of distinguished postal card readers is now holding an annual session at Portland, this to be graced by the presence of the distinguished Mr. Hitchcock. The bunch will have some high old flings together, spend $50 each and return to their several postoffices confident that Taft will be re-elected, and that they will be re-appointed. It's good to get out and whoop'er up sometimes.

Visit Kline's ladies' suit department, second floor. 9-20-tf

"Dad" Stewart, of South Bend, Washington, has just opened an oyster and lunch house in the front room north of Murphy's Racket store. The walls are burlapped, floor linoleum, paint has been used to good advantage and the little place has been fitted with up-to-date means of handling acceptably a heavy trade. The rear portion, devoted to the kitchen, has an entire open front so that it is in view of the eater, a fact that should add to its popularity. "Dad" Stewart is an old hand at the business and as proud of his spotless reputation as a man could be, and he promises to make his place noted for its cleanliness and the quality of his offerings. He is buying his oysters direct from the coast resorts and gives his patrons the best there is. The store has a new glass front, and ornamental door, and really adds to the appearance of that section of Second street.
