The City and Vicinity

Churchill, the Albany printer, is in Corvallis today.

Miss Mary Cauthorn has been spending a few days in the country with Mrs. Fred Buchanan.

A picture of Albert Zierolf's Benton county farm home adorns this week's cover of the Pacific Homestead.

Don't forget to hear M. J. Fanning the Prohibition lecturer at the Congregational church next Sunday at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Miner Swick, who has been quite ill all week, is somewhat improved, but is still unable to be about.

Mrs. A. Wilhelm Jr. has been brought to her home at Monroe, from a stay of several months in a Portland hospital.

Miss Lillian Murray, who has been the guest of her uncle, D. D. Berman, has returned to her home in Denver, Colorado.

Mrs. Ed Richmond, of Dalles, arrived this noon for a visit with her mother, Mrs. D. S. Adams, on North Eleventh street.

Baker City sends her usual quota of students to O. A. C. this year. Among the returning ones are Sam Michael and Herschel Curry.

Misses Ariel Ewing and Helen Tobin, Dean Greer's assistants at Waldo Hall, have returned from a trip to New York City and other eastern points.

Albany had a gas plant located there several weeks ago. It developed that the excitement was caused by an Ohio firm desiring to sell machinery.

Gov. Benson has named Prof. C. E. Bradley of this city as a delegate to National Dry Farming Congress at Billings, Montana, October 26-28.

Messrs. M. C. Phillips and S. Graf have perfected a new "course in Mechanical Drawing" have it copyrighted and will use it at O. A. C. this year.

But $225 a front foot has been offered for one of the best of Salem's unoccupied corners. And yet some property holders here want that price.

Miss Ruth Smith, of Marshfield, and Miss Ester Johnson, two popular young lady students at O. A. C. last year—prominent members of "The Mikado" cast—are at school again.

Monday is the only remaining official registration day at O. A. C. Class work begins Tuesday morning and the authorities expect all students in the city to be registered and ready for work by that time.

Dr. G. H. Feese of Coquille, Coos Co., and Rev. Memminger, of Portland, both old-time pastors of the M. E. church in this city, have been in Corvallis this week, enroute home from attending conference.

The widows of the late Wm. H. Peacock and Asa L. Peacock, the men killed by the Albany well cave-in, have been named as administratrixes of the estate. William's estate is valued at $2400, and Asa's at $2600.

Alexander Dodge, a handsome six-footer from Pasadena, is in Corvallis to attend school at O. A. C. this year. Dodge was one of the heart-smashers here last year and is being received again with the glad hand, as well as open arms.

Mrs. S. S. Manlove, of Kansas City, writes to friends here that in her last summer's trip through the Northwest, Corvallis looked better to her than any other town she saw. This city impressed her as one in which she would like to live, and it's her intention to move here as soon as affairs at home can be arranged satisfactorily.

Col. J. B. Eddy, right of way agent for the Harriman lines in Oregon, has completed the work of securing rights of way for the Lebanon extension of the Woodburn-Natron line by way of Lebanon, and the work of construction will be commenced at once. He paid about $20,000 for the right of way through Lebanon.

At the Commercial Club rooms yesterday afternoon about fifteen ladies of the Auxiliary spent the hours in sewing on towels, nurse's aprons, bandages and the like, for use at the Mary's River Sanitarium. Quite a little really effective work was done, and to the delight of Miss Isabelle Smith, matron of the new hospital. Not the least pleasant feature was the opportunity afforded for meeting Miss Smith. She is regarded as a very capable woman, one well fitted for the work in hand.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stevenson are at home from Seattle. A. L. expresses himself as being immensely pleased with the fair as a whole, but he insists with no little vehemence that the Oregon exhibit is scarcely less than a failure. It was extremely disappointing to him and he feels that such a "holler" should be made about this half-done proposition that no similar mistake will be made in the future. Mr. Stevenson has no fault to find with the building but says the exhibit and its arrangement is discreditable to the state of Oregon.

Miss Leota Jones returned last night from a visit at the Seattle fair.

Marion Hayden, a substantial citizen of Alesia, looked after business in Corvallis today.

Postmaster Johnson, president of the Postmasters' Association of Oregon, came home from Portland last night and is wearing his new honors with becoming dignity. He doesn't appear swelled up simply because he shook hands with Postmaster General Hitchcock.

The heavens southwest of Corvallis were ablaze last night from a fire two or three miles away. Effort to discover what was burned has been unavailing. Many people here with splendid olfactory organs insist that it was nothing more than a straw stack.

The regular meeting of the College Club will be held at Club room next Monday afternoon. The ladies are requested to put in their appearance and take with them either a glass of jelly or a jar of fruit. These goodies will be donated to the Mary's River Sanitarium.

Morris Rogoway and W. J. Gibbons, special agents handling the Oregon Booster Girls' contest for the Gazette-Times, Albany Herald, Salem Statesman and other papers of the Willamette valleys are in Corvallis looking after this end of the business. Any girl in Benton county is eligible to enter the contest.

Mrs. M. Keeney, of Brownsville, and daughter, Mrs. John Senger, of Corvallis, transacted business in Albany today, going to Corvallis this noon. Mrs. Keeney is an old resident of Brownsville, having resided there for years, but she will hereafter make Corvallis her home, having disposed of her property at Brownsville.—Albany Herald.

F. A. Gould, who is to be assisted in civil engineering at O. A. C. this year, arrived last night from Owosso, Mich. Mr. Gould's appearance is prepossessing, so no one should hold the name of his town as against him. Sometimes a man cannot help it that he hails from Oshkosh, Scappoose, Kalamazoo, Podunk, or other town with an outlandish name.

A farewell reception to Rev. D. H. Leech and family is to be held at the M. E. church Monday evening. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited to be present. Rev. Leech leaves Tuesday, accompanied by his family, for Grants Pass, his new field of labor, whither he will be followed by the good will of everyone with whom he has come in contact during his two years' pastorate in Corvallis.

One of the city stores in a burst of enthusiasm left a number of O. A. C. pennant decorations outside their store the other night, and overly-enthusiastic students, presumably, appropriated them. The proprietors of the store, while slightly vexed at this termination of their well-intentioned effort to welcome students royally, very readily condoned this offense, but the city's police officials are not so ready to excuse this petty pilfering. If they can discover the perpetrators of this little crime, the boys will have to pay fines. The officials will not tolerate rovdysism or misconduct of any sort, so the boys may well take warning.

The Walters Stock Co. is appearing at the Palace theater in a playlet entitled "All's Well That Ends Well" in which each member of the company makes good. The motion picture program includes "Niagara in Winter Dress," showing the beautiful and wonderful scenery at America's greatest resort during last winter. The Star opened last night for its regular winter's run and put on a picture program hard to beat. Hereafter, the Star will have a change of program Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights and the Palace Monday and Thursday nights. The bills of last night will be repeated tonight.

A correspondent from Wren signing himself as "One Who Knows" published in another county paper a statement to the effect that a Corvallis butcher bought of a Wren man a beef afflicted with a bad case of "big head." He said the butcher killed the animal and sold it in Corvallis. The correspondent asks the Corvallis people and Atty. E. R. Bryson, in particular, how they like this kind of meat. The G. T. has seen Mr. Bryson several times recently, and it is clearly evident that if he did get any of the "tainted" meat, the fact failed to manifest itself in his disposition. Ed is as bright and cheerful as ever and, apparently, has no quarrel with the world or the butcher. Nor is any other Corvallisite in unwonted ill-health or ill-humor, so it is probable that most are immune from the effects of the "big head," or else "big head", the kind animals are afflicted with, is either not catching or dangerous. In seriousness, the Wren correspondent should have signed his name and should have named the Corvallis butcher referred to, rather than have all the butchers of this city rest under suspicion of the crime he cites.

An Asperion Suspected. "That is quite a remarkable Rembrandt," said the connoisseur. "Sir!" rejoined Mrs. Cumrox. "Yes, Rembrandt, you know, the great painter." "Oh! I thought you said 'remnant.'" —Washington Star.

The Fraction. "Humble as I am," said a loud voiced orator at a meeting. "I still remember that I am a fraction of this magnificent empire." "You are, indeed," said a bystander. "and a vulgar one at that."—London Express.

Curious. If a man is bettered his condition is improved; if he is "bested" he is really "worsted."
