The City and Vicinity

Prof. and Mrs. Gerard Taillandier arrived home Saturday from a summer's travel.

Pendergrass and Cherry, old O. A. C. stars, will play with the Multnomah football team this year.

Mrs. Mentor Howard received a telegram Saturday from her brother, T. R. Mayhan, that his wife was dying at St. Vincent's hospital in Portland.

The College Chorus announced for tonight will have to be deferred until next Monday night, owing to other pressing engagements requiring attention and attendance this evening.

L. C. Perry, a student who handled laundry successfully for a Portland concern last year, is at school again and once more is soliciting laundry for the Portland house. His office is in the green "bungle-oh" on Madison street, where candy is sold.

Three students rooming at the C. E. Peterson place on North 6th got too noisy Sunday night and Mr. Peterson ordered them to leave. They refused to go without ten days' notice. Chief Wells was sent for and the boys left without ten minutes' notice. It was midnight. The boys are nice looking youngsters, utterly belieing their rowdiness.

Those who claim to know say that a four-pier bridge will answer the purposes for a structure across the Willamette here. It is interesting to note that a contract for such a bridge across the Willamette at Eugene has been let. There will be four concrete piers 10x30 feet at the base and 30 feet high above low water, supporting three spans of 200 feet of Howe truss design, and of sufficient strength to carry any load that may be put on them, the structure to cost $40,000.

Mr. X. was a prominent member of the B. P. O. E. At the breakfast table the other morning he was relating to his wife an incident that occurred at the lodge the previous night. The president of the order offered a silk hat to the brother who could stand up and truthfully say that during his married life he had never kissed any woman but his own wife. "And, would you believe it, Mary?—not a one stood up." "George," his wife said, "why didn't you stand up?" "I was going to, but I knew I looked like — in a silk hat."

Mrs. Mary Smith Lewis, of Greensburg, Indiana, is here on a visit to her brother, Commissioner George Smith, and will remain a week. For eleven years she has been superintendent of the Odd Fellow's Home at Greensburg, and came west with a train load of Odd Fellows to attend a national meeting at Seattle. Greensburg is in the heart of the best section of Indiana, where natural gas and trolley development has resulted in all but Paradise. As a result, Mrs. Smith, despite four visits to the west, is still in love with Hoosierdom. This visitor is a most charming woman in appearance, and, apparently, as intellectual as she is charming.

One of the large plate-glass window in the Graham & Wells store was replaced Saturday, a young man and a small rock having put the first glass out of commission. While across the street, in front of Starr's, the young man thoughtlessly attempted a game of golf, with a pebble as the ball and an axe for the "shinny" stick. The rock went through the Graham & Wells window—and the boy had a fit for an hour. Such a glass costs about $50 and the young golfer had no idea where he was going to get the money. After the lesson had soaked in properly, Mr. Hartsock told the young fellow that the glass was insured and that the company would have to stand the loss. It is safe to say that lad will not play golf on Second street again.

The Presbyterian congregation was fortunate in having Dr. Gesselbracht in the pulpit Sunday morning. The Albany man impresses one as having genuine ability as a student, thinker and logician, and to fluency he adds a commanding presence, a magnificent speaking voice, and an enunciation as charming as it is remarkable. Dr. Gesselbracht sought to make clear that religion should rightly undergo scientific test, and offered the assurance that it will stand that test. But he urged that the public should not accept as final the statements of men whose training has not fitted them for proper investigation of the realm of religion. As men do not go to a historian for authoritative information regarding geological formation, or to a master chemist for the highest information about music, it is certainly illogical for them to go elsewhere than to the Great Master to learn about religion. The speaker urged his hearers to "prove all things," but to prove them by methods within the realm of religion, rather than by tests from without. The real test of religion is to live it. While some might differ in a minor way, Dr. Gesselbracht made a decidedly favorable impression.

J. Fred Yates is in Portland on a business trip.

There has been a heavy sale for "The Time, The Place and The Girl." Some seats are left but the prospect is that the house will be crowded.

Colonist folders for Corvallis are here—a little late but better than never. The folder is of ten pages, full of good information about Corvallis. The folders should be sent out at once.

St. Mary's Chapter No. 9, Order Eastern Star, will hold its next regular communication Tuesday evening, Sept. 28, in Masonic temple. All members are requested to be present and visiting sisters and brothers will be cordially welcomed.

The G.-T. scribbler wrote it "Coffee" Club—the typesetter put it "College" club—the proof reader did not catch the mistake—hence a very annoying blunder crept into the daily Saturday. Mistakes happen on the first page of the Oregonian and in all newspapers and periodicals—but still they are annoying.

The representatives of the M. E. church south in session at Portland last week elected Victor P. Moses, of this city, as delegate to the next national conference, to be held in the far East. Mr. Moses will represent the laymen of the entire state, an honor that is well worth while.

Charles L. Baker and M. T. Burnett stand around on the street corners these days chewing away on jerked venison. They were in the mountains last week and bagged four bucks. Mr. Baker claims to have handled the gun that laid low three of these. Practically the entire trip was made in a downpour of rain.

Uncle Joe Yates is enjoying a visit from his nephew, Geo. Hagood, of Durant, Oklahoma. Uncle Joe left Arkansas when he was sixteen years of age and during fifty-seven years spent in Oregon he has not seen eastern members of the Yates family, so this visit brings exceptional pleasure. Mr. Hagood, with his wife and family, has been at the Seattle exposition, and then came here to see the Yates family. With Uncle Joe as pilot, he will visit the various relatives in this and Linn county and in a couple of days start for his Oklahoma home. Mr. Hagood likes the appearance of this country but is satisfied with Durant, which is to become a school town soon, one of the state normals being located there.

The Gazette-Times desires to acquiesce in the opinion of groceryman Horning that the wonderberry is indeed a wonder. After looking at the berry on the vine, it was with a great deal of skepticism that the writer bit into a piece of wonderberry pie—but the pie made good. It was fully the equal of blueberry, and not greatly different in taste from the blackberry. The wonderberry is truly palatable, in pies, and well worth cultivation. Mr. Horning has a few vines in an illy favored part of his garden, but they grow splendidly and are bearing much fruit—only the wonderberry is not fruit. The vine resembles the tomato vine and the fruit itself looks like a vegetable product, which it undoubtedly is. Mr. Horning believes that the people will make a mistake if they do not cultivate the wonderberry.

R. L. Whitehead, who returned from Seattle and Vancouver, British Columbia, last Saturday presents the G.-T. with a copy of the Vancouver News-Advertiser in which the British make claims of the North Pole territory. For what seems to the average American to be unadulterated gall, the following from the British paper takes the cake. The News-Advertiser says: "An amusing feature of the whole affair is the sublime arrogance of both Peary and Cook in planting an alien flag within our British boundaries. To Canada belongs all the land in the extreme north up to the Pole; it is our hinterland, impracticable for settlement a sentimental possession, but our own; so that the spectacular "raising of the Stars and Stripes" was merely the expression of natural exuberance on the part of two (or one) intrepid explorers, and quite meaningless from a national standpoint. Gladly we render unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's, to Peary all honor and credit, all praise and admiration, for his gallant work, his patience, endurance and skill, and his splendid ultimate achievement, but what we own is ours, and even in the frozen North the foreigner may not tread upon the British Lion's tail."

Jewell Baking Co. New and up-to-date Best Bread, Buns, Pies and Cakes in the city. 341 Second Street Telephone 132 Deliveries made to all parts of town.

Dr. Page of Oakland, Ore., a friend of Sam Hartsock, was in Corvallis over Sunday.

Taxes not paid before Oct. 4 will be delinquent. There is about $6000 to be collected yet. The largest receipt given recently was for $263.

Sheriff Gellatly continues to improve at a Portland hospital and will probably be at home about Wednesday. He has been able to walk for some time, though he is still very weak. Friends here will be glad to welcome him back.

O. H. Waddell and mother and sister and Frank Lyons and family arrived Saturday from Alma, Nebraska. These new comers have already secured houses and are moving into them to day, it being their intention to make Corvallis their permanent home.

W. A. Ore will be the new pastor at the M. E. church south. While the congregation here was unanimous in its desire for the return of Pastor Wood, it is said that he desired to be relieved that he might go to Idaho to be with a brother on a ranch for a time.

NOTICE. Proposals For Street Work.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Municipal Judge of the City of Corvallis until the 5th day of October, 1909, at six o'clock, P. M. for the improvement by paving the roadway with either Bithulithic or Hassam pavement and otherwise improving in the manner provided by Ordinance No. 286 and according to the plans and specifications on file in the office of the Municipal Judge the following portions of streets of the City of Corvallis, Oregon, to-wit:

Second Street from a point 21 feet South of the North line of "A" Street to a point 300 feet North of the North line of Polk Street, and adjacent sections of intersecting streets as follows: Jackson Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street; Monroe Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street; Madison Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street; Jefferson Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street; Madison Street from the East line of Second Street to a point 15 feet East of the West line of First Street; Madison Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street; Madison Street from the East line of Second Street to a point 15 feet East of the West line of First Street; Jefferson Street from the West line of Second Street to a point 14 feet West of the East line of Third Street.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check on some responsible bank payable to the order of Geo. W. Denman, Municipal Judge of said City, in a sum equal to five per cent of the bid which shall be held to secure the bidder entering into contract and giving undertaking for the faithful performance thereof as provided by Ordinance No. 286 of said city aforesaid in case his bid shall be accepted. All bids will be referred to the Council of said City of Corvallis at its meeting to be held October 5, 1909, at 7:30 P. M.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved. GEO. W. DENMAN, Municipal Judge, City of Corvallis. First Publication, September 27, 1909. Last Publication, October 4, 1909.

Concealed Weapons. Once in a college town the rumor that students were carrying concealed weapons reached the ears of the local police. The chief at once issued stringent orders that the heinous practice should be stopped. One day a group of them passed a policeman, and one of the students in so doing put his hand to his hip pocket. Then, as if recollecting himself in time, he hastily withdrew it and looked sheepishly at the policeman.

"What have you in that pocket?" the latter asked sternly. Instead of answering, the student and all his companions, as if panic stricken, started to run. After a chase all the students were cornered and ordered to deliver up whatever they had in their hip pockets. Meekly they obeyed. Each one carried a cornob. The remarks of the policemen cannot possibly be recorded.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Making History. When Kinglake was writing his history of the Crimean war he received letters from all sorts of people concerned in the war. One day a letter with a deep black border came from two people in the colonies, husband and wife, describing their grief. Their only child had been killed in the Crimea. They wanted to have him mentioned in the "History of the Crimean War." Kinglake was touched and replied by post that he would do his best if they would send him the necessary particulars. Again a letter, also black bordered, full of thanks, but with the following conclusion: "We have no particulars whatever to give you. He was killed on the spot, like many others, but anything you may kindly invent will be welcome. We leave it entirely to your imagination."—London Chronicle.
