HOW POOR THEY ARE

An examination into railway rates, incited by the complaints of Salt Lake shippers, has been held in Salt Lake city under the auspices of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. It has been perfectly clear to the merchants of Salt Lake that merchants on the coast could obtain at least just as low a rate as they could from the great shipping centers of the East; that they have been discriminated against and their wholesale and jobbing trade in the inter-mountain region greatly injured thereby.

Skilled railway attorneys were present in behalf of the railways, and by every means at their command attempted to obscure the issues involved and to make it clear that upon the maintenance of present methods and rates depended the only possible means of continuing in the business. The arguments were heard and the Commission will announce its conclusions later. Poverty; the need of the money was the chief string played upon by the railway representatives.

It is significant of their impecunious condition, however, that just after the hearing the earnings of the Union and Southern Pacific railways for the month of August were published and show:

Union Pacific: Gross earnings, $7,948,614, increase $973,142 over same month last year. Net earnings, after payment of operating expenses and taxes, $4,182,655, increase $711,551.

Southern Pacific: Gross earnings, $11,310,742; increase, $1,479,107. Net earnings: $4,497,858; increase, $1,067,096. Poor railways! What sum would they have to earn to convince them that they were doing fairly well?

That class of people consumed with the desire to learn what the future in this life has in store for them may well profit by the experience of a Swede now in a Portland hospital. Erick Erickson, desiring to learn of the good or ill luck to be his portion, consulted a Portland fortune teller. Just what good things she told him is not related, but the fact that she told Erick he was to die on October 6, 1909, is the basis of the notoriety that has come to him. When October 6 rolled 'round the credulous scion of King Oscar expected the fortune teller's prophecy would come true and he thought it so strongly that he felt it necessary to help that prophecy to fulfillment. He begged physicians to kill him and finally landed in the hospital "crazy as a loon." When people seek to learn of the truly unknowable future their energies are misdirected.

Big Special For Contestants

extra vote offer made during the entire contest. If you have friends who want to help you when their help will count the most, now is the time for them to do it. If you are behind, this is your opportunity. This offer begins with this issue and will last ten days. Work hard during this period and take advantage of the extra votes and you can get a good lead.

There are those who are trying to avoid helping the girls and still posing as their friends, but these are few and becoming known to the contestants. Get the habit, "Everybody help." What is a couple of dollars when you get value received and at the same time help a girl to win. Don't be cheap, the big talk doesn't get votes. The contestants need votes, so show your friendship by helping out.

Extra votes, as they will be awarded during the special offer, are as follows: Each candidate turning in not less than $25 will receive 10,000 extra votes; $30, 12,000 extra votes; $50, 25,000 extra and for every five dollars turned in over $50 2500 extra votes will be given. All of the money turned in, in subscriptions, after today by or for the young ladies, will apply on this offer. See all of your friends now and ask them to subscribe while votes count double.

Close up your promises during this offer. If people tell you to call again, ask them to set a definite date and be sure to call again on that day.

Do not wait. Work hard now during the only special vote offer during the contest.

Horses Ran Away; Two Hurt

At the bottom of the hill the wagon veered around cross-wise of the road and sent the occupants whirling to the ground with terrific force, while the horses broke away from the vehicle. The sun was above the horizon when the accident happened and it was far below when Mr. Barton was able to sit up and take notice. He spent an hour reviving Mrs. Barton, hunted his horses and finally reached home. The wagon was not damaged nor horses injured, so Mr. Barton feels that it was a fortunate accident.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE

The Centennial Celebration of the Christian church to be held at Pittsburg one week beginning on Oct. 19 is expected to attract 50,000 delegates from all over the world. The origin of the Christian church dates from the publication in 1809 by Thomas Campbell, of Washington, Pa., of a document known as the "Declaration and Address" which led to the founding of the Christian church. The church has 1,250,000 members, with 6000 ministers, and about 40 schools, colleges, hospitals, etc. It also has missions and hospitals in many foreign countries in the far east.

Portlanders have wagered $5,000 on the outcome of the championship baseball series.

OPENING OF HARVARD HOUSE

Ambassador Reid to Accept Historic Building For America.

The first public function which will be undertaken by Whitelaw Reid on his return to England will be the opening of the Harvard House in Stratford-on-Avon. The date of the function has been fixed by the ambassador himself for Oct. 6, so that the ceremony may be coincident with the installation of Dr. Lowell as the new president of Harvard university. The Harvard House was the home of Katherine Rogers, the mother of John Harvard, and from its threshold she went out to be married to Robert Harvard of Southwark. From this union sprang the founder of Harvard university.

It is chiefly to Miss Marie Corelli, the novelist, that the gift of Harvard House to America is due. She long cherished the idea that the Stratford-on-Avon dwelling, where John Harvard's mother lived and where he himself often stayed in childhood, should belong to Harvard university.

Miss Corelli was strongly supported in her scheme by Edward Morris of Chicago, who bought the house and intrusted Miss Corelli with its repair and also its furnishing in the style of the Harvard period. The work concluded, Mr. Morris presented the house to Harvard university. It was accepted and is to be held in perpetuity under a body of trustees.

The house is perhaps the most beautiful sixteenth century building existing in Stratford-on-Avon. Miss Corelli has removed all modernities and allowed the house to show itself as it is and as it was in the days of John Harvard. No new material has been put into the building, but the old timbers have been fully disclosed and carefully preserved. It is a far more perfect specimen of a sixteenth century abode than Shakespeare's birth-place.

After the opening ceremony by Mr. Reid the house will be open to the public and will be available to traveling Americans for use as a resting place in Stratford. On the day of the opening Miss Corelli will entertain the ambassador and some hundred friends at luncheon at her residence, Mason Croft.

GOV. JOHNSON MEMORIAL.

Thousands of School Children Will Have Chance to Give Cents.

Forty-five thousand school children of Minneapolis will have an opportunity to subscribe to the John Albert Johnson memorial fund. In the sixty-one schools of Minneapolis the 1,100 teachers will be directed to inform the children that no contribution is asked, but that if any child desires to participate in honoring a man who was not only a great man, but a friend of all the children, a few cents or more may be subscribed.

The plan to erect a memorial to John Albert Johnson, the late governor of Minnesota, that should be a remembrance to the people, the money for which should come from the people, has extended rapidly over the state. The announcement that the contributions would be limited to $1 met instant approval everywhere.

James J. Hill and Louis W. Hill have indorsed the plan, and the railroad officials of Minneapolis and St. Paul favor it.

The Lemon Cucumber.

After six years of experimenting and with knowledge gained at the agricultural college of the Wisconsin State university G. E. Brown, a young farmer of Spokane Bridge, Wash., has succeeded in growing what he proudly terms the "lemon cucumber," almost spherical in shape, and which he guarantees free from the qualities of producing ill effects upon the stomach. About an acre of the new product has brought Mr. Brown about $300 this season. The entire supply is being shipped to Portland, where they are being used by fancy caterers.

Drinks Served in Ice Cups.

Drinks served in tumblers made of ice are the invention of a Dutchman named Huizer. Water is introduced into a mold and is then frozen. As soon as the contents of the tumbler have been drunk it can be thrown away, and thus ideal hygienic conditions are obtained. The ice tumblers cost only a twentieth of a penny to make.
