Georgianna Joe Graduates From Portland Secretarial School, Plans Secretarial Employment

Graduating from her 15-month clerk-receptionist course at Portland Secretarial School, Portland, on December 23 was Georgianna Joe. Georgianna received a stenographic diploma after completing such subjects as English, typing, spelling, math, shorthand, business forms and filing. She considers that shorthand was the most difficult but concedes she got to the point where she could take "a little bit". Her instructors give her more credit and add that she is also an excellent typist.

Evaluating the course, Georgianna avers: "I thought it was real wonderful." As for the school: "It's nice too."

She recommends Portland Secretarial highly to other girls interested in business training: "I think more girls should take advantage of it. I've seen some other business schools and I don't think they have as much equipment to work with as they do here. It's more like a working place. They treat you just like you're on the job."

Georgianna got her high school training at Chiloquin and Mt. Angel High Schools. Her first three years were spent at Chiloquin and her senior year at Mt. Angel, a girls' school operated by Catholic sisters. She considers Mt. Angel an excellent preparatory school for post-high school training: "They prepare you better for college or anything you might want to go into. The teachers are more for all the students. There isn't any playing around. With all girls it's bound to be that way."

Georgianna's present plans are explicit: "I want to work, get a job." She has several prospects, including a secretarial position with Portland General Electric Co., and anticipates that one will materialize shortly. Geographically she intends to remain in the

One Bid Received In First Sustained Yield Unit Sale, Plans Received On Second Group

Only one out of the four sustained yield units put up for sale on Jan. 20, 1960 received a bid. The bid was made by Crown Zellerbach for the purchase of the Antelope Desert Unit.

The unit for which Zellerbach bid $1,642,182,—$6,000 more than the realization value, is located in the Northwestern part of the Reservation. It covers 91,541 acres of land and is estimated to contain 68,907 M board ft. of saw timber and 464,399 cords of lodgepole pine. The required deposit of $81,809.00, was submitted together with the bid. The company is required to pay the balance within ninety days from the date the bid is accepted by the Secretary of Interior. It is expected that Secretarial acceptance will be announced within the near future.

According to Public Law 587 as amended, private purchasers are required to have their sustained yield management plans approved by the Secretary of Agriculture before they are eligible to submit bids. Furthermore, the amended termination law provides that only bids equal to or exceeding the realization value will be considered.

Of the four units put up for sale on January 20, three units received plans. Only the Sykan Marsh unit with a realization value of $6,403,036 received no plan. Specialty Gas Products submitted the two other plans, one for the North Marsh Unit and the other for the Modoc Point Unit, both of which plans were approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

In lieu of bids on these units, however, Specialty Gas submitted a formal request for a three month extension of time or until April 20, 1960. A statement by Robert Maloney, president of the company, explained that the extension was being requested because Federal, state and county tax consequences peculiar to sustained yield operations had not been resolved. As of the publication of this issue of the Tribune, no word had been received regarding the Department of Interior's approval or disapproval of this request. Over fourteen million dollars are involved in these two units alone, since the realization value of the North Marsh Unit is $11,047,376 and the Modoc Point Unit has been valued at $3,784,618.
